BILL TO AID GUARD

SECRETARY BAKER ASKS CONGRESS FOR $3,082,000 TO PURCHASE EQUIPMENT.

GEN. BLISS OFF TO BORDER

Will Inspect Troops and See That They Are Properly Cared For—Resolution Demands Report of Sanitary Conditions.

Washington, July 13.—Secretary of War Baker on Tuesday asked congress for $3,082,000 for use by the National Guard for mountain, field and siege artillery practice ammunition and $861,000 for alterations and maintenance of the mobile arm material used by the National Guard.

He asked, also, for $507,500 for a new storeroom and increased storage facilities at the Rock Island Arsenal, Philadelphia, each improvement made necessary by the increased work authorized at these government plants. He wants $200,000 for an additional mobile arm material plant.

Gen. Tasker L. Bliss, assistant chief of the general staff, left Washington for an inspection trip of the militia on the Mexican border.

"The object of this inspection," said Maj. Douglas MacArthur, speaking for the department, "is to insure that everything possible under the circumstances is being done for the health and comfort of the Guardsmen."

Complaint has been made both as to the character of food furnished the militia and unsanitary and uncomfortable transportation facilities. Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, will present an amendment to the army bill providing for a civilian commission of experts to inspect the food supplies for the army.

Representative Moore's resolution to investigate the sanitary conditions of the National Guard mobilization, and Representative Gardner's resolution calling for a report on the condition of New Mexico, Arizona, and Texas units, when they are mustered in, were passed by the house without debate.

EMERGENCY TAX IS VOTED

Measure Passed in House by 240-140 Vote.

Washington, July 12.—Without any fundamental change, the Democrats put through the house on Monday night their emergency revenue bill by a vote of 240 to 140. Forty minority members, 29 Republicans and one independent voted for the bill on final passage.

The bill which is designed to raise more than $200,000,000 a year, virtually doubles the income tax rates, levies a tax on inheritances and the production of munitions of war, creates a tariff commission, embodies anti-dumping legislation and repeals the "stamp tax" sections, but not the special excise taxes of the "war revenue bill" of October, 1914.

Representative Wood, an Indiana Republican, obtained adoption of an amendment eliminating the special tax levied against bankers of $1 per thousand of capital, surplus and undivided profits. Bankers are taxed under the corporation law.

GOOD ROADS BILL SIGNED

Provides U. S. Shall Spend $85,000,000 on Condition States Appropriates Equal Amount.

Washington, July 13.—President Wilson on Tuesday signed the good roads bill recently passed by congress, authorizing the expenditure of $85,000,000 in five years by the federal government on condition that states expend amounts similar to those apportioned to them. The signing was witnessed by members of the senate and house, representatives of farmers' organizations and officials of the American Automobile Association and the Association of State Highway Officials. The bill provides $100,000,000 for roads in federal forest reserves.

VILLISTAS WIN FIGHT

'FIRST CHIEF' OUSTS TREVINO

General Reported to Have Imprisoned Officer Sent to Succeed Him as Commander of Troops in Northern Mexico—Others Given New Posts.

El Paso, Tex., July 14.—Reports to the American military officials here indicate that Pancho Villa has completely routed the Carranzista forces in southern Chihuahua after a 12-hour fight, which ended at noon.

This information was received through reliable American mining companies who have large interests in the vicinity of Parral.

Gen. Francisco Gonzales, the Carranza commander at Juarez, and Consul Andres Garcia said they had been unable to get an official report of the battle. This silence is accepted as significant by the American army officials. It is not the custom of the Mexicans to report a defeat.

Strife within the ranks of Carranza commanders is indicated in a report received here to the effect that Gen. Jacinto B. Trevino, commander in chief of all troops in the state of Chihuahua and northern Mexico, has been deposed by order of Minister of War Alvaro Obregón, and Gen. Ignacio Barrios, former civil governor of the state of Chihuahua, appointed in his place.

General Barrios is now four days overdue at Chihuahua City, having started north about a week ago from Mexico City with his commission. In connection with his failure to arrive, General Trevino has given out a story to the effect that Barrios was captured and executed by Villistas at Diaz, the first station north of Juarez, on the Mexican Central railroad. This story is disputed and an investigation is said to be under way to ascertain if Barrios has not been placed in jail at Torreon by order of Trevino.

By the same order of General Obregón, Trevino has been appointed military commander of the states of Nueva Leon and Tamaulipas, in northeastern Mexico, a post, it is said, to which he does not aspire. All the appointees of Trevino are also said to be removed by the war chief's order, including those of Gen. Francisco Gonzales at Juarez and Gen. Luis Hierro at Parral. Both of these generals are to accompany Trevino to his new field.

TWO MORE KILLED BY SHARK

Man and Boy Slain by Man-Eater While Bathing in New Jersey—Youth's Body Missing.

Matawan, N. J., July 14.—A shark darted up the narrow, shallow Matawan creek on Wednesday in the third fatal raid in less than two weeks, and killed again, leaving death in its wake.

The shark killed a man and a boy. It mangled another boy so badly that he will lose a leg and probably will die. The latest victims of the man-eater were swimming two miles up the creek from Matawan bay when they were attacked. They are:

Stanley Fisher, twenty-five years old, of Matawan, who died in the Monmouth Memorial Hospital, Long Branch. The shark ripped off one of his legs.

Lester Stillwell, twelve years old, of Matawan, whose body has not been recovered. The shark bit his frail body almost in half and dragged him below the surface. He is believed to have been eaten by the giant.

Joseph Dunn, fourteen years old, of Brooklyn, who is in St. Peter's hospital New Brunswick. The teeth of the shark slashed and mangled one leg so badly that it will have to be amputated.

The shark has killed four bathers thus far this season.

President Discusses Mexico in Address at Detroit.

Executive Declares Against War With Southern Republic—Hearers Say They Favor Peace.

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—President Wilson delivered an address at the world's salesmanship congress here on Monday. He urged that business men carry justice and fair dealing into the ports of the world, particularly those of Mexico, and thereby establish confidence in American principles. His efforts, he declared, will be to serve all America by serving Mexico itself for her best interests without "using force" to serve the few "gentlemen" who wish to exploit Mexican possessions.

When the president asked the crowd what it desired at the end of all the present world troubles, it shouted "Peace" in one voice and then he added that his wish was "permanent peace."

"I hear some men say," he said, "that they want to help Mexico, and the way they propose to help her is to overthrow her with force. That is the wrong way as well as the long way."

"After fighting them you would have a nation full of justified suspicion. You would not help them. You would shut every door against you."

"What makes Mexico suspicious is that she thinks we do not want to serve, but possess her. And she has justification for these suspicions in the way some gentlemen have sought to exploit her possessions."

"I will not serve those gentlemen, but I will serve all Americans by trying to serve Mexico herself."

"The way to establish our sovereignty is to respect hers."

Mr. Wilson declared that the merchant marine which some are "so slow in giving us" will be a great help to the business interests of the United States.

REVENUE BILL IN SENATE

Measure for the Raising of $197,000,000, Passed by House, Goes to Upper Body.

Washington, July 12.—The administration's $197,000,000 revenue bill, passed by the house, is now in the senate. The house vote was 240 to 140. 34 Republicans and five Progressive Republicans voting with the Democrats for the bill.

The measure would repeat existing stamp taxes and put new taxes on incomes, inheritances and war munition profits. It also would create a tariff commission, lay a protective tariff on dyestuffs, and prevent dumping by foreign trade in this country after the European war.

The senate will have to consider several amendments incorporated, regardless of Democratic leaders' opposition, before the bill passed the house. These would eliminate the proposed tax of $1 for each $1,000 of bank capital, surplus and undivided profits, reduce the salaries of the five members of the tariff commission from $10,000 to $7,500 annually, and allow $300,000 to the commission for the first year only instead of appropriating that sum yearly for an indefinite period.

GOV. PHILIPP AND WILLIAMS CHOSEN

Karel Men Oppose Nomination of Burt Williams by Democrats—Republicans Would Make It Possible for Troops to Vote.

Madison.—The Wisconsin Conservative Republican state convention here endorsed the nomination of Hughes and Fairbanks and the Republican national platform, endorsed candidates for nomination for the five elective state offices of Wisconsin at the primary election in September, and adopted a state platform of conservative Republican principles. The convention was attended by over 500 delegates. Gov. E. L. Philipp dominated the convention and was endorsed for re-election by acclamation. His name was presented by State Senator E. T. Fairchild of Milwaukee.

Gov. Philipp appeared before the convention and said he would pursue his present policy respecting rearmament of state expenditures.

Maj. Marshall Cousins of Hudson, by acclamation was endorsed for lieutenant governor. Assemblyman Geo. Harrington of Elkhorst was endorsed for secretary of state over Col. O. G. Munson of Virgo, Nels Holman of Deerfield, and Hoyt Winslow of Oshkosh. State Treasurer Henry Johnson of Oconto, a former La Follette supporter, was endorsed for state treasurer, Paul Schorl of Gillette was endorsed.

Former Attorney General E. R. Hicks of Oshkosh was endorsed for attorney general on the fourth ballot. Former Attorney General Levi H. Bancroft and Lynn Williams were also candidates.

At the suggestion of Maj. Marshall Cousins of Hudson, who is in Texas with Wisconsin troops, the convention adopted a motion requesting the governor to call an extra session of the legislature enabling the absent Wisconsin soldiers to vote.

The platform endorsed the candidacy of M. G. Jeffris of Janesville as a candidate for United States senator against La Follette, declared for state aid for highways, and pensions for dependent mothers.

GERMAN SUBMARINE MAKES TRIP IN 16 DAYS

Craft Beats British Blockade and All Submersible Records—Chased 800 Miles by Enemy Warships.

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland has arrived in Chesapeake bay.

The boat carries no passengers. Her cargo consists of 250 tons of dyestuffs and chemicals.

The diver also carries a message from Emperor William to President Wilson and a large amount of mail, and is to carry back home a similar amount of nickel and crude rubber, sorely needed by the German army.

She is commanded by Captain Koenig and has a crew of 20 men. Both German and crew are drawn from the German merchant fleet and not from the navy. The craft is unarmed and is being treated by the United States like any other merchant ship.

It is said that she submerged whenever she saw a warship, on the chance that it might be a vessel. The English government was not among those who regarded the transatlantic submersible as a joke, and the United States has the record for submersible distance travel.

U-BOAT DASH EASY, DECLARES CAPTAIN

DARING VOYAGE OF SUBMARINE ACROSS THE ATLANTIC DESCRIBED BY COMMANDER.

DODGED FOE BY SUBMERGING

Undersea Craft Dropped to Bottom of Ocean at Times to Avoid Possible Dangers—Threaded Maze of Hostile Warships.

Baltimore, Md.—And we sat down before the floor of the British channel because the roof was crowded with noisy destroyers, and we drank good French champagne while we sang "We're rings on our fingers and bells on our toes," and presently the destroyers gave us room on the roof and we came up and went on to America. It was all just as simple as that, I tell you."

Thus simply did Capt. Paul Koenig, commander of the German submarine U-53, describe the daring voyage of his undersea craft through the North sea, which was dotted with enemy vessels, and across the Atlantic ocean to the port of Baltimore.

"What is there about my voyage to cause all this commotion?" asked the captain of a group of reporters who were eagerly questioning him regarding the great game of hide-and-seek which he played with the British navy on his 4,000-mile dash across the waters. "I have done nothing remarkable. Anybody who has sense enough to navigate a boat and who builds a boat like the Deutschland can do equally well—better, I believe."

Captain Koenig will have it no other way than that the British grip on German commerce is shortly to be broken. "We have proved it," he said, his eyes alight with enthusiasm. "We are building a 2,000-ton submarine that will be able to voyage 30,000 miles without replenishing all tanks, and the British can't catch us. We laugh at them—look now at this thing."

He pointed to the hose of the German U-boat, the U-53, the construction of which he described in the undersea trading plan.

The Deutschland went from Bremerhaven out to sea in the light of day on June 14, went in the early morning as matter of fact as a crew of mechanics or lumber from any New York pier slips out into the harbor and down to the lower bay. Neither Bremen up the river, nor Bremerhaven, gate to the North sea, sent bands to blow farewell or crowds to cheer.

Koenig laid a course straight to Germany's north sea Gibraltar, Heligoland.

"Why did you do that?" he was asked.

"Knew the British warships were somewhere about," he said. "And we wanted to lay up at Heligoland for some days to feel them. There is always a chance that spies may reveal the comings and goings of our ships, and it was wise to mark time for a little while. In this case only one ally, so far as I knew, had my secret. He was the American consul at Bremen, Wm. Thomas Fox, whose duty it was to approve our manifest. He was to be trusted, naturally, but we could take no chances."

"We loaded pleasantly off Heligoland under the shade of the big masts until the morning of June 23. The time was passed usefully in improving the training of the crew."

"Good fellows, my boys."

"About these men, now—say a word for them if you must hold us up to the world's eyes. They are good fellows, my boys, strong fellows. Most of them are quite young, though most are married and are raising rosy checked babies to grow up for Germany's glory. They are all fine mechanics and full of—what do you say—pep, that is it."

"On the morning of June 23 we turned westward in the North sea and headed straight for the British channel. Somebody has said that we went all the way around Scotland. nonsense, why should we? It was easy enough to find the British and going through the Channel was child's play."

"What were your best aids to navigation, captain?"

"How did you find out you were under your sea progress under sea?"

"Microphone Aided Cruise."

"That microphone and our device for taking soundings while submerged did the trick. Everybody understands these days what the microphone is, and under a telephone, so delicate that it catches and records the vibrations of any bulk moving upon or under the waves."

"We have two microphones on the Deutschland, one on the port, one on the starboard side. One of us, an officer if possible, kept an ear always to the transmitter. When we heard disturbing murmurs through our little eavesdropper we stopped dead still, maybe, or went ahead slowly. Sometimes we dropped to the sea floor and kept as still as a mouse until we could figure out what the menace was. Sometimes we merely dropped fifty feet or so beneath the surface and anchored in that position, suspended between the surface and the bottom. The microphones warned us of cruisers and destroyers and sometimes of buoyed mines."

"How He Dodged Mines."

"About these mines," somebody cut in, "have we heard that the Channel is sown with them, that they run in solid lanes across the Straits of Dover?"

"Save His Birds at Risk of Life."

"Determined to save the lives of a number of songbirds he had in his cage hanging on the porch of his home, little Richard Chambers, ten, of New Orleans risked his life in opening the cages and freeing his pets while his home burned about midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were awakened by the cracking of burning wood, and barely succeeded in turning out the five children in the family, and getting them safely out of the burning building."

"It's the Shells."

Walter—Yes, sir; omelets has gone up on account of the war.

Diner—Great Scott! Are they throwing eggs at each other now?—Tit-Bits.

DODGED FOE BY SUBMERGING

Undersea Craft Dropped to Bottom of Ocean at Times to Avoid Possible Dangers—Threaded Maze of Hostile Warships.

Baltimore, Md.—And we sat down before the floor of the British channel because the roof was crowded with noisy destroyers, and we drank good French champagne while we sang "We're rings on our fingers and bells on our toes," and presently the destroyers gave us room on the roof and we came up and went on to America. It was all just as simple as that, I tell you."

Thus simply did Capt. Paul Koenig, commander of the German submarine U-53, describe the daring voyage of his undersea craft through the North sea, which was dotted with enemy vessels, and across the Atlantic ocean to the port of Baltimore.

"What is there about my voyage to cause all this commotion?" asked the captain of a group of reporters who were eagerly questioning him regarding the great game of hide-and-seek which he played with the British navy on his 4,000-mile dash across the waters. "I have done nothing remarkable. Anybody who has sense enough to navigate a boat and who builds a boat like the Deutschland can do equally well—better, I believe."

Captain Koenig will have it no other way than that the British grip on German commerce is shortly to be broken. "We have proved it," he said, his eyes alight with enthusiasm. "We are building a 2,000-ton submarine that will be able to voyage 30,000 miles without replenishing all tanks, and the British can't catch us. We laugh at them—look now at this thing."

He pointed to the hose of the German U-boat, the U-53, the construction of which he described in the undersea trading plan.

The Deutschland went from Bremerhaven out to sea in the light of day on June 14, went in the early morning as matter of fact as a crew of mechanics or lumber from any New York pier slips out into the harbor and down to the lower bay. Neither Bremen up the river, nor Bremerhaven, gate to the North sea, sent bands to

SECRETARY BAKER ASKS CONGRESS FOR $3,082,000 TO PURCHASE EQUIPMENT.

GEN. BLISS OFF TO BORDER

Will Inspect Troops and See That They Are Properly Cared For—Resolution Demands Report of Sanitary Conditions.

Washington, July 13.—Secretary of War Baker on Tuesday asked congress for $3,082,000 for use by the border National Guard for months, and also for alterations and maintenance of the mobile army hospital used by the National Guard.

He asked, also, for $267,500 for a new storehouse and increased storage facilities at the Rock Island Arsenal and $23,000 for strengthening the sea wall at the Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, each improvement made necessary by the increased work authorized at those government plants. He wants $262,000 for an additional sodium nitrate storage plant.

Gen. Tinker L. Bliss, assistant chief of the general staff, left Washington for an inspection trip of the militia on the Mexican border.

"The object of this inspection," said Maj. Douglas MacArthur, speaking for the department, "is to insure that everything possible under the circumstances is being done for the health and comfort of the guardsmen."

Complaint has been made both as to the character of food furnished the militia and unsanitary and uncomfortable transportation facilities. Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate military affairs committee, will present a amendment to the army bill providing for a civilian commission of experts to inspect the food supplies for the army.

Representative Moore's resolution to investigate the sanitary conditions of the National Guard mobilization, and Representative Gardner's resolution calling for a report on the condition of New Mexico, Arizona and Texas units, when they are returned in, were passed by the house without debate.

EMERGENCY TAX IS VOTED

Measure Without Material Alteration, Passed in House by 240-140 Vote.

Washington, July 12.—Without any fundamental change, the Democrats put through the house on Monday night their emergency revenue bill by a vote of 240 to 140. Every minority member, 39 Republicans and one independent voted for the bill on final passage.

The bill which is designed to raise more than $200,000,000 a year, virtually doubles the income tax rates, levies a tax on inheritance and the production of munitions of war, creates a tariff commission, embodies anti-dumping legislation and repeals the "stamp tax" sections, but not the special duties taxes, the "war revenue" bill of October, 1914.

Representative Wood, an Indiana Republican, obtained adoption of an amendment eliminating the special tax levied against bankers of $1 per thousand of capital, surplus and undivided profits. Bankers are taxed under the corporation law.

GOOD ROADS BILL SIGNED

Provides U. S. Shall Spend $85,000,000 on Condition States Appropriates Equal Amount.

Washington, July 13.—President Wilson on Tuesday signed the good roads bill recently passed by congress, authorizing the expenditure of $85,000,000 in five years by the federal government on condition that states expend amounts similar to those apportioned to them. The signing was witnessed by members of the senate, representatives of farmers' organizations and officials of the American Automobile Association and the Association of State Highway Officials. The bill provides $10,000,000 for roads to federal forest reserves.

DISOWNS EUGENIA'S CHILD

Mrs. Edward Kelly, Whose Daughter Married Dancer, Refuses to Recognize Babe.

New York, July 12.—Mrs. Edward Kelly, whose daughter Eugenia married "Al" Davis, the tango dancer, said she will disown the child born to the couple on June 2. "I have two grandchildren, Frank Gould's children, of whom I am justly proud," she said; "but this one I shall refuse to own. I am not interested in those people. I am through with them."

2,550,000 Now in Chicago

Chicago, July 14.—W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education, reported the minor population of Chicago to be 2,550,000, from which he estimates the total population of all ages for 1916 to be 2,550,000.

Plot to Dynamite Trains

Altoona, Pa., July 14.—Pennsylvania railroad detectives are investigating what appears to have been a deliberate attempt to destroy railroad property or to wreck trains with dynamite at Altoona, near Altoona.

Busy Lightning Bolt

Eastons-on-Hudson, July 12.—A man walking across a field, a conductor on a trolley car a mile away, and a boy half a mile from the trolley car were stunned at the same time by the same bolt of lightning.

Willson to Visit Wisconsin

Eagle River, Wis., July 12.—President Wilson is to spend two or three weeks in the heart of the northern Wisconsin forests, inagato, seeking rest and recreation before starting his campaign for re-election.

Dying Woman Clears Girl

Jacksonville, Fla., July 11.—Laura Livingston, a woman of the underworld, on her death bed in a local hospital, told of the murder of Jesse Adams, seven years ago, and exonerated Miss Jessie Brown of the crime.

Woman Loses $2,500 Gems in Club

Chicago, July 11.—Miss George Brandeis, wife of an Omaha merchant, asked the police to search for her $2,500 diamond bar pin which she says she lost in the rooms of the Chicago Athletic Club.

VILLISTAS WIN FIGHT

'FIRST CHIEF' OUSTS TREVINO

General Reported to Have Imprisoned Officer Sent to Succeed Him as Commander of Troops in Northern Mexico—Others Given New Posts.

El Paso, Tex., July 13.—Reports to the American military officials here indicate that Pancho Villa has completely routed the Carranza forces in southern Chihuahua after a 12-hour fight, which ended at noon.

This information was received through reliable American mining companies who have large interests in the vicinity of Parral.

Gen. Francisco Gonzales, the Carranza commander at Juarez, and Gen. Andres Garcia said they had been unable to get an official report of the battle. This silence is accepted as significant by the American army officials. It is not the custom of the Mexicans to report a defeat.

Scritte within the ranks of Carranza commanders is indicated in a report received here to the effect that Gen. Jacinto B. Trevino, commander in chief of all troops in the state of Chihuahua and northern Mexico, has been deposed by order of Minister of War Alvaro Obregon, of the state of Mexico, former civil governor of the state of Chihuahua, appointed in his place.

General Edríguez is now four days overdue at Chihuahua City, having started north about a week ago from Mexico City with his commission. In connection with his failure to arrive, General Trevino has given out a story to the effect that Obregon was captured and executed by Villistas at Diaz, the first station north of Juarez on the Mexican Central railroad.

This story is disputed and an investigation is said to be under way to ascertain if Edríguez has not been placed in jail at Torreon by order of Trevino.

By the same order of General Obregon, Trevino has been appointed military commander of the states of Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas, in northern Mexico, a post, it is said, to which he does not aspire. All the appointees of Trevino are also said to be removed by the war chief's order, including those of Gen. Francisco Gonzales at Juarez and Gen. Luis Herrera at Parral. Both of these generals are to accompany Trevino to his new field.

TWO MORE KILLED BY SHARK

Man and Boy Slain by Man-Eater While Bathing in New Jersey—Youth's Body Missing.

Matawan, N. J., July 14.—A shark darted up the narrow, shallow Matawan creek on Wednesday in the third fatal raid in less than two weeks, and killed out again, leaving death in its wake.

The shark killed a man and a boy. It munched another boy so badly that he will lose a leg and probably will die. The latest victims of the man-eater were swimming two miles up the creek from Matitan bay when they were attacked. They are:

Stanley Fisher, twelve years old, of Matawan, who died in the Monmouth Memorial hospital, Long Branch. The shark ripped off one of his legs.

Lester Stillwell, twelve years old, of Matawan, whose body has not been recovered. The shark bit his frail body almost in half and dragged him below the surface. He is believed to have been eaten by the giant.

Joseph Dunn, fourteen years old, of Brooklyn, who is in St. Peter's hospital New Brunswick. The teeth of the shark slashed and mangled one leg so badly that it will have to be amputated.

The shark has killed four bathers thus far this season.

BLISS WILL BE TREASURER

Named to Handle G. O. P. Funds in the Campaign—July 30 Nomination Date.

New York, July 14.—Cornelius N. Bliss will be the treasurer of the Republican national committee. This was officially announced Wednesday at the headquarters of Charles E. Hughes.

Mr. Bliss, who is a New York dry goods commission merchant, is the son of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, who formerly was treasurer of the national committee.

It was announced that the campaign committee will assemble in New York July 20, and will meet Mr. Hughes on that date.

NEW SIGN FOR THE OLD STAND

HITS AT EXPLOITERS U-BOAT REACHES U. S.

Executive Declares Against War With Southern Republic—Hearers Say They Favor Peace.

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—President Wilson delivered an address at the world's suffrage convention here on Monday. He urged that business men carry justice and fair dealing into the ports of the world, particularly those of Mexico, and thereby establish confidence in American principles. His efforts, he declared, will be to serve all America by serving Mexico herself for her best interests without using force, not to serve the Mexican possessions.

When the president asked the crowd what it desired at the end of all the present world troubles, it shouted "Peace" in one voice and then he added that his wish was "permanent peace."

"I hear some men say," he said, "that they want to help Mexico, and the way they propose to help her is to overthrow her with force. That is the wrong way as well as the long way."

"After fighting them you would have a nation full of justified suspicion. Thus you would not help them. You would shut every door against you."

"What makes Mexico suspicious is, serve, but possess her. And she has justification for these suspicions in the way some gentlemen have sought to exploit her possessions."

"I will not serve those gentlemen, but I will serve all Americans by trying to serve Mexico herself."

"The way to establish our sovereignty is to respect hers."

Mr. Wilson declared that the merchant marine which some are "so slow in giving us" will be a great help to the business interests of the United States.

REVENUE BILL IN SENATE

Measure for the Raising of $197,000,000, Passed by House, Goes to Upper Body.

Washington, July 12.—The administration's $197,000,000 revenue bill, passed by the house, is now in the senate. The house vote was 240 to 140. The bill repeals existing stamp taxes and put new taxes on incomes, inheritances and war munition profits. It also would create a tariff commission, lay a protective tariff on dyestuffs, and prevent dumping by foreign trade in this country after the European war.

The senate will have to consider several amendments incorporated, regardless of Democratic leaders' opposition, before the bill passed the house. These would eliminate the proposed tax of $1 for each $1,000 of bank capital, surplus and undivided profits, reduce the salaries of the five members of the tariff commission from $10,000 to $7,500 annually, and allow $300,000 to the commission for the first year only instead of appropriating that sum yearly for an indefinite period.

Would Solve Servant Problem. New York, July 13.—Miss Meta Anderson has started a house-work school and hopes to solve the servant problem in the suburbs by supplying employees who will not want to spend most of their time in the movies.

President Back in Capital. Washington, July 13.—President Wilson arrived here safely from his Detroit trip. The president expressed himself as greatly impressed with the "peace sentiments" which was everywhere manifest on this trip.

Dynamite at Columbus. Columbus, N. M., July 12.—Enough dynamite to blow Columbus off the map has been found buried in the Mexican quarter by Capt. Louis Van Shaik. Three Mexicans were immediately arrested.

Many Misses Ministers. New York, July 12.—Leaders in a movement to raise a pension fund for 178,000 Protestant ministers said that 40,000 of them were misfits. Pious for misfits, it was explained, would make for greater efficiency.

Japs Beaten in Net Meet. St. Louis, July 11.—A Kumagae and H. Mikami, Japanese tennis stars, were eliminated as contenders in the national championship tourney when they were defeated in the sectional doubles by Cannon and Lindauer.

Fifteen Injured in Collision. Youngstown, O., July 11.—Fifteen persons were injured, some seriously, when a crowded passenger car on the Youngstown and Sharon interurban line crashed into a work car near the Basin street tunnel here.

Prison for Art Swindlers. Berlin, July 12.—Ludwig W. Lehmann, accused of painting and selling pictures representing the works of noted German masters, was sent to jail for four years. His wife was sentenced to three years.

Auto Races July Train: Four Dead. San Francisco, July 12.—A. T. Stern ran his automobile against a train, but failed by a margin of seconds to make the crossing. Besides Stern, three other persons, including two women were killed.

Naval Battle in Baltic. Copenhagen, July 13.—A sea battle occurred in the Baltic. Violent cannonading was heard from several points on the coast, and it is presumed the Germans and Russian parading squadrons clashed.

Waterloo—Five saloons may be granted licenses, and no more, in Waterloo, under the Baker law. The license fee is $200. Under the operation of the law five saloons are closed. The action of the board was in accordance with the decision of Attorney General Owen.

Paris Green Proves Fatal. Grand Rapids—Mrs. Anna Belman, 62 years old, widow, died here from the effects of taking paris green.

GOV. PHILIPP AND WILLIAMS CHOSEN

Karel Men Oppose Nomination of Burt Williams by Democrats—Republicans Would Make It Possible for Troops to Vote.

Madison—The Wisconsin Conservative Republican state convention here endorsed the nomination of Hughes and Fairbanks and the Republican national platform, endorsed candidates for nomination for the five elective state offices of Wisconsin at the primary election in September, and adopted a state platform of conservative Republican principles. The convention was attended by over 500 delegates. Gov. E. L. Philipp dominated the convention and was endorsed for re-election by acclamation. His name was presented by State Senator E. T. Fairchild of Milwaukee.

Gov. Philipp appeared before the convention and said he would pursue his present policy respecting retrenchment of state expenditures.

Maj. Marshall Cousins of Hudson, by acclamation was endorsed for lieutenant governor. Assemblyman Geo. Harrington of Elkhorn was endorsed for secretary of state over Col. G. G. Munson of Verona. Nels Holman of Deerfield, and Hoyt Winslow of Oshkosh, State Treasurer Henry Johnson of Oconto, a former La Follette supporter, was endorsed for state treasurer, Paul Schardt of Gillette withdrawing.

Former Attorney General E. R. Hicks of Oshkosh was endorsed for attorney general on the fourth ballot. Former Attorney General Levi H. Bancroft and Lynn Williams were also candidates.

At the suggestion of Maj. Marshall Cousins of Hudson, who is in Texas with Wisconsin troops, the convention adopted a motion requesting the governor to call an extra session of the legislature enabling the absent Wisconsin soldiers to vote.

The platform endorsed the candidacy of M. G. Jeffris of Janesville as a candidate for United States senator against La Follette, declared for state aid for highways, and pensions for dependent mothers.

William E. Wolfe of La Crosse was nominated unanimously for United States senator, with the Karel conservative Democrats approving. The Karel men declared they would accept almost any candidate except Williams, who led the bolt, they declared, to the Wisconsin which defeated Karel in 1914.

The only vote on the governorship was on a proposal to place three candidates in the field, Williams, George Staudenmayer of Caledonia, and George E. Hilton of Oshkosh. This was defeated, 278 to 174, and then the chairman declared the choice was made by acclamation.

Before this step was taken Karel from the floor of the convention bitterly protested against the nomination of Mr. Williams, now collector of internal revenue for western Wisconsin.

The rest of the ticket named by the Democrats is as follows: Lieutenant governor—John Cudahy, Milwaukee; secretary of state—Edward A. Jones, Portage; state treasurer—John G. Reutemann, Milwaukee; attorney general—Judge Thomas H. Ryan, Appleton.

Finish State Capitol Jan. 1, 1917. Madison—The new Wisconsin capitol, which has been in process of erection for ten years, will be completed by Jan. 1, 1917. The total cost of the building so far has been $6,655,917.66. The legislature appropriated from time to time a sum aggregating $7,255,917.66 for the building and Secretary Foster says the total cost of the building will be within that amount.

Lived 65 Years on Same Farm. Rochester—William E. Hoyt died at his home on Maple drive, in the town of Rochester, Racine county, at the age of 65 years. He had always lived on the farm where he died.

Officer Is Promoted. Stevens Point—Lieut. Col. Edward F. MacGillivray of this city, who is now serving on the Mexican border, has just been promoted to the rank of colonel in the regular army and assigned to the command of the new Eighth regiment of artillery.

Hatton Opens Headquarters. Madison—Headquarters for William H. Hatton, republican gubernatorial candidate, have been opened here with Walter House of Mondovi in charge.

Farmer Tossed by Bull. Neenah—Archie Calder, farmer, was tossed by a bull, and the animal forced Calder into a corner, where he had to battle for his life. He suffered internal injuries and a fractured arm.

La Crosse Man Expires. La Crosse—Calvin S. Baker, proprietor of the Stoddard Hotel, died after a short illness of pneumonia. He was 46 years old.

Five Waterloo Saloons Closed. Waterloo—Five saloons may be granted licenses, and no more, in Waterloo, under the Baker law. The license fee is $200. Under the operation of the law five saloons are closed. The action of the board was in accordance with the decision of Attorney General Owen.

Paris Green Proves Fatal. Grand Rapids—Mrs. Anna Belman, 62 years old, widow, died here from the effects of taking paris green.

Find Body of Lost Hunter. Wausau—The gun, clothing, skull and a few bones of Paul M. Siebert, who disappeared from home on June 29, were found in a swamp half a mile from his home in the town of Weston. The body had been dismembered and parts of it carried away by animals.

Cooper Names Campaign Manager. Racine—Congressman Henry A. Cooper, a candidate for re-election, has appointed Elmer E. Gittins as manager of his personal campaign.

Save His Birds at Risk of Life. Determinded to save the lives of a number of songbirds he had in cages hanging on the porch of his home, little Richard Chambers, ten, of New Orleans risked his life in opening the cages and freeing his pet birds. His home burned about midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were awakened by the cracking of burning wood, and barely succeeded in waking the five children in the family, and getting them safely out of the burning building.

Indirect Benefits. Wausau—Was your hazaar a success? Gladys—Yes, indeed; the minister will have cause to be grateful. Mabel—How much were the profits? Gladys—Nothing. The expenses were more than the receipts. But ten of us got engaged and the minister is in for a good thing in wedding fees.

It's the Shells. Walter—Yes, sir; omelets has gone up on account of the war. Diner—Great Scot! Are they throwing eggs at each other now?—Tit-Bits.

Sufferings of the Innocent. "Do you think this famous trial will result in anybody's punishment?" "Sure. The jury has already been locked up."

The Difference. "The automobile, as far as pleasure is concerned, has put the horse out of commission." "I don't know about that. Take the fast motorcar and the slow old horse, when coming in is in question, and it is the buggy built for two that has the choice sparkling phiz."

Tribute to Genius. "How did you come to buy all those books?" "I was charmed into it by the salesman's talk. Sometimes I think the books were all right, except for the book agent had written them himself."

Making Observations. "Of course, as a prudent statesman, you kept your ear to the ground." "No, sir," replied Senator Sorghum. "I feel called upon to stand up straight and keep both eyes on the horizon."

The Difference. "The automobile, as far as pleasure is concerned, has put the horse out of commission." "I don't know about that. Take the fast motorcar and the slow old horse, when coming in is in question, and it is the buggy built for two that has the choice sparkling phiz."

JUDGE MUCKLESTON KILLED

Waukesha Jurist Meets Death When Auto Is Run Down by Interurban Car at Crossing.

Delafield—Municipal Judge Milo Muckleston of Waukesha, former football star of the University of Wisconsin, was instantly killed when his automobile was struck by an interurban car a short distance from Delafield. He had been in Oconomowoc, holding court and was on his return to Waukesha when the fatality occurred. Robert Thomas, riding on the auto running board, saw the car and jumped with a warning cry, but it appears that the auto was fairly on the tracks before the judge understood the danger. The automobile was struck with terrific force and dragged 100 or more feet before the heavy interurban car could be brought to a stop.

DAUGHTER GETS ONE DOLLAR

Monroe Physician Cuts Off His Only Child, a Religious Sister, in Will Disposing of $100,000.

Monroe—The will of the late Dr. Looftbourrow, for more than forty years a practicing physician in Monroe, and the owner of the Looftbourrow hospital, cuts off his only child, Miss Lela Looftbourrow, teacher of music in St. Rose parochial school in Milwaukee, with a single dollar. The will disposes of money worth between $100,000 and $150,000. Miss Looftbourrow is known in religious life as Sister Mary Rosalinda.

Miss Lattie Newman, superintendent of the hospital, and long associated with Dr. Looftbourrow in the conducting of the same, is left the institution free from all indebtedness. The remaining property is to be divided equally between seven brothers and sisters of the deceased.

MUNICIPAL SALOON BLOCKED

Refusal of Brewing Company to Let Building Causes Withdrawal of Altoona Project.

Eau Claire—Because they allege an Eau Claire Brewing company refuses to let them have the building on which they had option, Altoona's near municipal saloon, has temporarily withdrawn from the field and at its own request the license was revoked by the common council and licenses were issued to three other applicants.

For the municipal saloon, the city was turned down. The time and money spent for the project was a result of Altoona being wet after a ten day's dry spell. However, the municipal saloon backers aver they will yet successfully launch their project and it is hoped they will erect their own building. They charge brewery interests are bucking the municipal saloon proposition.

FIRE CAUSES $100,000 LOSS

Mohr Lumber Company Property at Wausau Destroyed by Flames.

Wausau—The Mohr Lumber company's saw mill, planing mill and box and lumber factory were destroyed by a fire, with a loss estimated at $100,000. The property was insured for $65,000. Loss to the value of $10,000, owned by the Underwood Veneer company, were destroyed. Two box cars of the North-Western Railway company were burned with their loads of lumber. The explosion of an oil barrel is believed to have started the blaze.

Pay of Guardsmen Continues

Milwaukee—The Milwaukee county supervisors has decided to give all county employees who are members of the militia and in service on the border a six months' leave of absence, or as long as they may be detained, with full pay. A minority report of Supervisor Melms, Socialist, that the salary paid by the government be deducted was turned down by a vote of 12 to 6.

Takes Four Story Plunge. Kenosha—Frank Foster, 50 years old, widely known in Kenosha as "Shorty" Foster, sought death in a sensational manner here when he plunged head first from the fourth story window of the public service building in the heart of the business street of the city. He was picked up alive but his recovery is doubtful.

Sues as Result of Beating. Appleton—Charging that injuries received in a severe beating April 29 were responsible for the fact that Fred Westphal, 54, was sent to the Northern Hospital at Oshkosh, Matthew Defferding, guardian, brought suit for $9,000 against August Delann, who is alleged to have beaten up Westphal.

O'Connor Is Nominated. Washington—President Wilson has nominated Frank O'Connor of Wausau for United States marshal for the western district of Wisconsin.

Sensor to Speak Labor Day. Madison—Senator R. M. La Follette has been invited by the labor unions of both Madison and Stoughton to make labor day speeches. It is probable that he will speak in Stoughton in the morning and in Madison in the afternoon.

Hemp Factory Burns. Fond du Lac—The John Habler Hemp factory in the town of Waupun was destroyed by fire with a loss of $25,000 unprotected by insurance.

Will Vote on Light Plan. Oconomowoc—At the special meeting of the Oconomowoc common council the offer of the T. M. E. R. and L. company to supply electric current to the city was discussed. It was decided to place the matter to a vote of the people at the fall election.

Hambrecht's Father Dead. Madison—William Hambrecht, aged 75, father of Industrial Commissioner George P. Hambrecht, was found dead in bed.

Find Body of Lost Hunter. Wausau—The gun, clothing, skull and a few bones of Paul M. Siebert, who disappeared from home on June 29, were found in a swamp half a mile from his home in the town of Weston. The body had been dismembered and parts of it carried away by animals.

BEYOND the FRONTIER

A STORY OF EARLY DAYS

by RANDALL PARRISH

COPYRIGHT © A. C. McLEOD & CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Adèle is a Cheyenne, a belle of New France, is among conspirators at her uncle's house. Cassion, the commissaire, has enlisted her Uncle Cheyenne's aid in his service as guide to Cassion's party on the journey to the wilderness. The uncle informs Adèle that he has betrothed her to Cassion and forbids her to see D'Artigny again. In Quebec Adèle visits her friend, Sister Celeste, who brings D'Artigny to her. She tells him to stay and he vows to release her from the bargain with Cassion. D'Artigny leaves promising to see her at the dance. Cassion escorts Adèle to the ball where she meets the governor, La Barre, and hears him warn the commissaire against D'Artigny. D'Artigny's ticket to the ball has been recalled, but he gains entrance by the window. Adèle informs him of the governor's warning to Cassion. For her escape from the ball Adèle is ordered by the governor to marry Cassion at once and to accompany him to the Illinois country. He summons Chevet and effects that he attend them on the journey. They leave in company with the Chevet family on the division of D'Artigny whom they know as the lover of Cassion. D'Artigny leaves the Chevet family for the first time years that his wife is in a hotel and learns to suspect that her husband is using the case to control her husband to share her sleeping quarters. Chevet agrees to help her.

Madame Cassion, loathing the husband who got her by fraud and threat, feels certain that she has a true confederate—an ally ready to do her bidding—in Rene D'Artigny. But disappointment lies upon her. In a crisis she learns she must fight alone. How she resolves to win against all odds and get revenge is described in stirring manner in this installment.

Leaning far out, grasping a branch to keep from falling, I distinguished the crew at the upper landing, and the Indians busy preparing camp. At first I saw nothing of any white man, but was gazing still when D'Artigny emerged from some shadow and stepped down beside the boat. I know not what instinct prompted him to turn and look up intently at the bluff towering above. I scarcely comprehended either what swift impulse led me to undo the neckerchief at my throat and hold it forth in signal. An instant he stared upward, shading his eyes with one hand.

I must have seemed a vision clinging there against the sky, yet all at once the truth burst upon him, and with a wave of the arm, he sprang up the low bank and joined his Indians. I could not hear what he said, but with a single word he left them and disappeared among the trees at the foot of the bluff.

He must have scrambled straight up the steep face of the bluff, for it could have been scarcely more than a minute when I heard him crunching a passage through the bushes, and then saw him emerge above the edge. Clinging to a tree hub, his eyes sought eagerly to locate me and when I stepped forward, he sprang erect and bowed, jerking his hat from his head. There was about his action the enthusiasm of a boy, and his face glowed with an eagerness and delight which instantly broke down every barrier between us.

"You waited to me?" he exclaimed. "You wished me to come?"

"Yes," I confessed, swept from my guard by his enthusiasm. "I have been anxious to confer with you, and this is my first opportunity."

"Why I thought you avoided me," he burst forth. "It is because I felt so that I have kept away."

"There was nothing else I could do but pretend," I exclaimed, gaining control over my voice as I spoke. "My every movement has been watched since we left Quebec; this is the first moment I have been left alone—if, indeed, I am now." And I glanced about doubtfully into the shadows of the forest.

"You imagine you may have been followed here? By whom? Cassion?"

"By himself or some emissary, Pere Alouez has been my jailer, but chances to be disabled at present. The commissaire permitted me to climb here alone, believing you to be safely camped above the rapids, yet his suspicions may easily revive."

"His suspicions? The sieur laughed softly. 'So that then is the trouble? It is to keep us apart that he bids me make separate camp each night; and assigns me to every spot of peril. I feel the honor, mademoiselle, yet why am I especially singled out for so great a distinction?"

"He suspects us of being friends. He knew I conferred with you at the convent, and even believes that you were with me hidden behind the curtain in the governor's office."

"Yet if all that be true," he questioned, his voice evidencing his surprise. "Why should our friendship arouse his antagonism to such an extent? I cannot understand what crime I am so convicted, mademoiselle. It is all mystery, even why you should be here with us on this long journey? Surely you had no such thought when we parted last?"

"You do not know what has occurred?" I asked, in astonishment. "No one has told you?"

"Told me! How? I have scarcely held speech with anyone but the Algonquin chief since we took to the water. Cassion has but given orders, and Chevet is mum as an oyster. I endeavored to find you in Montreal, but you were safely locked behind gray walls. That something was wrong I felt convinced, yet what it might be no one would tell me. I tried questioning the pere, but he only shook his head and left me unanswered. Tell me then, mademoiselle, by what right does this Cassion hold you as a captive?"

My lips trembled, and my eyes fell, yet I must answer.

"He is my husband, monsieur."

I caught glimpse of his face, picturing surprise, incredulity. He drew a sharp breath and I noted his hand close tightly on the hilt of his knife.

"Your husband! that cur! Surely you do not jest?"

"He! Never did he even conceive what occurred, until I told him later on the river. Even now I doubt if his sluggish brain has grasped the truth. To him the alliance was an honor, an opening to possible wealth in the fur trade through Cassion's influence with La Barre. He could perceive nothing else except his good luck in this riddling himself of the care of a poor niece who had been a sorry burden."

"But you explained to him?"

"I tried to, but only to regret the effort. Giant as he is physically, his intellect is that of a big boy. All he can conceive of is revenge—a desire to crush with his hands. He hates Cassion, because the man has robbed him of the use of my father's money; but for my position he cares nothing. To his mind the wrong has all been done when he told me to marry Cassion."

"And you have been obedient?"

"I was long absent, and either seek me myself or send one of his men. This is the first moment of freedom I have experienced since we left Quebec. I hardly know how to behave myself."

"And we must guard it from being the last," he exclaimed, a note of determination and leadership in his voice. "There are questions I must ask, so that we may work together in harmony, but Cassion can never be allowed to suspect that we have communication. Let us go forward to the end of the trail where you came up; from there we can keep watch below."

He still grasped my hand, and I had no thought of withdrawing it. To me he was a friend, loyal, trustworthy, the one alone to whom I could confide. Together we clambered over the rough rocks to where the narrow cleft led downward.

CHAPTER X.

On the Summit of the Bluff.

Securely screened from observation by the low growing bushes clinging to the edge of the bluff, and yet with a clear view of the cliff in the rocks half way to the river, D'Artigny found me a seat on a hummock of grass, but remained standing himself. The sun was sinking low, warning us that our time was short, for with the first coming of twilight I would certainly be sought, if I failed to return to the lower camp.

"You would question me, monsieur," I asked doubtfully. "It was for that I came here?"

"Yes," instantly aroused by my voice, but with eyes still scanning the trail. "And there is no time to waste, if I am to do my part intelligently. You must return before the sun disappears, or Monsieur Cassion might suspect you had lost your way. You have sought me for assistance, counsel perhaps, but this state of affairs has so taken me by surprise that I do not think clearly. You have a plan?"

"Scarcely that, monsieur. I would ascertain the truth, and my only means of doing so is through a confession by Francois Cassion. Arranged he is, and concealed, deeming

"I had thought of it, but with no mercy in my heart, yet as D'Artigny spoke I felt the ugliness of my threat more acutely, and for an instant, stood before him white-lipped and ashamed. Then before me arose Cassion's face, sarcastic, supercilious, hating me, and I laughed in scorn of the warning."

"Thought of it!" I exclaimed. "Yes, but for that I care nothing. Why should I, monsieur? Has the man shown mercy to me, that I should feel regret because he suffers? As to his revenge, death is not more to be dreaded than a lifetime passed in his presence. But why do you make plea on his behalf—the man is surely no friend of yours?"

"I make no plea for him," he answered, strangely sober. "And claim no friendship. Any enemy to La Salle is an enemy to Rene D'Artigny; but I would front him as a man should. It is not my nature to do a deed of treachery."

"You hold this treachery?"

"What else? You propose luring him to love you, that you may gain confession from his lips. To attain this end you barter your honesty, your womanhood; you take advantage of your beauty to ensnare him; you count as ally the loneliness of the wilderness; and, if I understand aright, you have through me to awaken the man's jealousy. Is this not true?"

"I drew a quick breath, my eyes staring into his face, and my limbs trembling. His words cut me like a knife, yet I would not yield, would not like acknowledge their truth."

"You are unjust, unfair," I burst forth impetuously. "You will see but the one side—that of the man. I cannot fight this battle with my hands, nor will I submit to such wrong without struggle. He has never thought to spare me, and there is no reason why I should show him mercy. I wish your good will, monsieur, your respect, but I cannot hold this plan which I propose as evil. Do you?"

He hesitated, looking at me with such perplexity in his eyes as to prove his doubt.

"I cannot judge you," he admitted at last, "only that is not the way in which I stand between you and your revenge nor have part in it. I am your friend—now, always. In every honorable way I will serve you and your cause. If Cassion dares violence or insult he must reckon with me, though I faced his whole company. I pledge you this, but I will not play a part or act a lie even at your request."

"You mean you will not pretend to care for me?" I asked, my heart leaped at his words.

"There would be no pretense," he answered frankly. "I do care for you, but I will not dishonor my thought of you by this deliberately scheming to outwit your husband. I am a man of the woods; the wilderness; not since I was a boy have I dwelt in civilization, but in that time I have been companion of men to whom honor was everything. I have been comrade with Stour de la Salle, with Henri de Tonty, and cannot be guilty of an act of treachery, even for your sake. Perchance my code is not the same as the perfumed gowns of Quebec—yet it is mine, and learned in a hard school."

He went on quietly. "There are two things I cannot ignore—one is, that I am an employee of this Francois Cassion, pledged to his service by my own free will; the other is, that you are his wife, joined to him by Holy church, and although you may have assumed those vows under coercion, your promise is binding. I can but choose my path of duty and abide therein."

His words hurt, angered me; I lacked power of expression, ability to grasp his full meaning and purpose.

"I leave you to reconsider your choice of action," he returned gravely. His hat still in hand, his lips unsmiling. "I do believe your womanhood will find a better way to achieve its liberty, but what that way is I must trust you to discover. I am your friend, Adèle, always—you will believe that?"

I did not answer; I could not, because of the choking in my throat, yet I let him grasp my hand. Once I raised my eyes to his, but lowered them instantly in strange confusion. Here was a man I did not understand, whose real motives I could not fathom. His protest had not yet penetrated my soul, and I felt toward him an odd mixture of respect and anger. He released my hand and turned away, and I stood motionless as he crossed the open space between the trees. At the edge of the bluff he paused and glanced about, lifting his hat in respect of farewell. I do not think I moved or made response, and an instant later he was gone.

I knew not how long I stood there staring into vacancy, haunted by regret, tortured by fear and humiliation. Slowly all else crystallized into indignation, with a fierce resolve to fight on alone. The sun sank, and all about me clung the purple twilight, yet I did not move. He had been unjust, unfair; his simple code of the woods could not be made to apply to such a situation as this mine.

I heard no sound of warning, yet as I turned to retrace my way to the camp below I became suddenly aware of the presence of Cassion.

"Yet you would make him love you?"

"In punishment for his sins; in payment for those he has ruined. Ah! 'tis a duty I shall not shrink from, Monsieur D'Artigny, even although you may deem it unwomanly. I do not mean it so, nor hold myself unmoved for the effort. Why should I? I but war against him with his own weapons, and my cause is just. And I shall win, whether or not you give me your aid. How can I fail, monsieur? I am young and not fit to look upon; this you have already confessed; here in this wilderness I am alone, the only woman. He holds me his wife by law, and yet knows he must still win me. There are months of loneliness before us, and he will not look upon the face of another white woman in all those leagues. Are there any French of my sex at Fort St. Louis?"

"No."

"Nor at St. Ignace, Pere Alouez assures me. I shall have no rival then in all this wilderness; you think me harmless, monsieur? Look at me, and say?"

"I do not need to look; you will have your game. I have no doubt, although the final result may not prove what you desire."

"You fear the end?"

"It may be so; you play with fire, and although I know little of women, yet I have felt the wild passions of men in lands where there is no restraint of law. The wilderness sees many tragedies—fierce, bitter, revengeful deeds—and 'tis best you use care. 'Tis my belief this Francois Cassion might prove a devil, once his heart was tricked. Have you thought of this?"

I had thought of it, but with no mercy in my heart, yet as D'Artigny spoke I felt the ugliness of my threat more acutely, and for an instant, stood before him white-lipped and ashamed. Then before me arose Cassion's face, sarcastic, supercilious, hating me, and I laughed in scorn of the warning."

"Ay! no doubt," he said harshly, "I hardly think it was the view which held you here so long. Whose boot print is this, madame? Not yours, surely."

I glanced where he pointed, my heart leaping, yet not altogether with regret. The young sieur had left his trail behind, and it would serve me whether by his will or no.

"Certainly not mine," I laughed. "I trust, monsieur, your powers of observation are better than that—'tis hardly a compliment."

"Nor is this time for any lightness of speech, my lady," he retorted, his anger fanned by my indifference. "Whose is it, then, I ask you? What man has been your companion here?"

"You jump at conclusions, monsieur," I returned coldly. "The gray imprint of a man's boot on the turf is scarcely evidence that I have had a companion. Kindly stand aside and permit me to descend."

"Mon dieu! I will not!" I said, and he blocked my passage. "I have stood enough of your tantrums already in the boat. Now we are alone and I will have my say. You shall remain here until I learn the truth."

His rage rather amused me, and I felt not the slightest emotion of fear, although there was threat in his words.

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

It was with an iron hand, but a genial, patient heart, as was her splendid nature, that Inez Walton took up the distracted threads of destiny amid the wreck and ruin of a great fortune.

"It's incredible, but true," spoke the old family lawyer, Gideon Blake. "Your father, it seems, was the victim of the most fantastic and unreasonable experiments and speculations. A Rothschild couldn't afford it."

Ex-Governor Glynn's answer to Theodore Roosevelt who would invite war on the part of the United States.
"The policy of the present administration may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in leaping. It may not satisfy the fire eater or the swashbuckler.
But it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the God of Peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and bedside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag has sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag, and die for our flag when Reason summons the idle, when Honor draws the sword, when Justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold."

BELEIVES NO SECOND
TICKET WILL BE NAMED

O. A. La Duddle, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, is at Milwaukee headquarters. Mr.
La Duddle does not think there will be a new ticket to oppose the one selected at the caucus.
"I believe and sincerely hope there will not be organized opposition to the state ticket nominated at the conference last week. I have every confidence in the Democrats of our state, and feel they will recognize that majority rule means democracy," he said.
"All nominations were either made unanimously or by a decisive majority, so that the expression from the delegates is plain and should have the undivided support of every Democrat who believes Wilson should be endorsed in this crisis of our action, and who recognizes the value of Democratic rule in the state.
"I believe with such leaders and eloquent campaigners as William F.
Wolfe and Burt Williams, we can and will win in the national campaign, and I feel and hope that all Democrats will give them their loyal support from now on."

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS

The following announcements are published by order and in behalf of the persons whose names are attached and who are entitled to the legal rates for publication, which are 50 cents per folio for first insertion and 25 per folio for subsequent insertions.

I, W. H. Bean of Vesper, Wood County, Wisconsin, hereby announce myself a candidate for County Clerk of Wood County to be voted for by the Republicans at September, 1916, primary election.
I have lived in Wood County 47 years and have had such education and business training. I believe fully fits me for this office.

W. H. BEAN.

CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff on the Republican ticket to be voted for at the September primary. If elected then, and elected in November, will serve the people of Wood county to the best of my ability.

J. E. NORMINGTON, Biron, Wis.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer on the Republican ticket at the September primary. Have been a resident of Wood County for over 50 years, all but two years of which was spent in farming in the town of Sigel. I have never held county office and if elected will give the office my attention and serve to the best of my ability. I will appreciate your vote.

CLAUDE JOHNSON.

BIRON

Mr. Grant Babcock has resigned his position here as millwright and gone to Rhinelander to accept a similar position there. Mr. Babcock will work under Mr. W. E. Beadle.

Miss Beth Lambert of your city was in our burg Sunday at the parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Lamberton.

Mrs. Henry Smith of Little Falls, Minn., who has been visiting with the A. C. Smith family here, went home Tuesday.

John Johnson and wife and August
Johnson and wife of your city, and
Chas. Williamson were at Pittsville
and Marshfield the past Sunday.

Archie Shearrier and family spent last Sunday below Nekeosa picking blueberries.

Steve and John Koneczowski were at Mill Creek and Stevens Point Sunday.

Mrs. J. T. Herron says that she will sell out soon and move to Grand Rapids. Mrs. Herron has been in the hotel business here for 10 or 12 years.

Mrs. Chas. Ellis has gone to Minnesota for a visit with her parents.

Miss Genevieve Gaffney has gone to Nekeosa for a visit with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Akey, Jeff and Earl Akey and Miss Percy Kempster attended the Chautauqua in Grand Rapids last week.

Chas. Stolp and family have gone to Detroit, Mich., where they will make their future home.

Chet Atwood and wife were in your city one day shopping.

John Witta was in Biron one day last week.

James Klappa of your city was in out but he left the past week sailing his kitchen.

Horace Weaver, wife and little son, went to Mosinee to visit at the Frank Gotsy and Clem Marceau homes.

Mike Jansky and wife were in your city one day shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson were in your city one day.

Archie Snyder had a close call one night the past week while coming to work. He was driving a young horse hitched up to a cart when he met a big car driving the opposite way. Mr. Snyder's horse gave all the road, but the car ran right into his rig and threw him and his horse into a wire fence, cutting his horse up quite badly. The car did not stop, but put on full speed and fled.

Mrs. Harry Sellers' baby was on the sick list the past week.

Robert Spaulding was on the sick list a few days the past week.

While working on the dam the past week James Stafford fell off the platform where they were working and sustained quite a fracture of the arm. Since then he has resigned his position on the dam. Archie says it was too hot working on the dam.

Fred Shank is now working on the dam, running the cement mixer.

Mrs. Ed Witta is in our burg a few days visiting her parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Witta.

It is the talk in our burg that they are trying to change Grand Rapids name to Wisconsin City. We, the people of our burg, think that it would not be right, for it has been Grand Rapids too long to be taken off the map. Grand Rapids is good enough for anybody. People should stop and think how hard a fight they had when they split our twin city.
Dear old Centralia! It used to sound good when the conductor and brakeman on the St. Paul and Green Bay used to howl Centralia and Grand Rapids. Now since they have taken off Centralia everybody should be in favor of Grand Rapids.

It is reported that Mrs. Francis Biron has sold out her store. At this writing we don't know for sure.

Chas. Juncus spent Sunday at Rudolph with his parents.

Raymond Crotteau spent Sunday at Rudolph with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Crotteau.

FOR SALE—Cheap, 20 acres of land on the Plover road, 1 1/2 miles north of city limits. Inquire of Os-

County.

In the matter of the Wood County Drainage District.

Notice is hereby given to all interested persons and corporations, that the annual report of the Wood County Drainage District for the year ending June 30th, 1916, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Wood County, Wisconsin, and that the same is open for your inspection in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Wood County, Wisconsin, in said county.

Following is a summary of said report and account:

Receipts: Balance on hand at last report, $800.00; levied from land and county treasurer, assessments, $816.00; received interest from banks, $477.94; total receipts, $2,093.94.

in book by the commissioners with their report.

No bonds have been paid by the district during the year, none having matured during the year.

All the main ditches, from its north end to its south end, also all laterals north and south of the main ditches, and all laterals, that is altogether about eleven miles of ditch in the district, was begun during the year. Two permanent bridges were built in the district and three miles of 10 inch sewer pipe were put in, completing the most of the sewerage system to prevent earth washing into the district ditches.

The commissioners have purchased, and headed to their proper locations, all necessary material for the district, and have planned for all of the bridges that the district must build.

The bonds issued by this district

Ex-Governor Glynn's answer to Theodore Roosevelt who would in-
States.

The policy of the present administration may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire eater or the swashbuckler.
But it does satisfy those who work at the altar of the God of Peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty
chair. It does satisfy the daughters
of this land from whom bluster and brags have been banished. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and
the sons of this land who will fight
for our flag, and die for our flag when reason primes the rifle, when honor draws the sword, when justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.

Nature is the only builder of beauty. You can improve your appearance permanently by securing good digestion, steady nerves and a sufficient supply of good quality blood. HEMO is a force extracted from your every day foods—concentrated—powerful—a force that not only propels at increased speed but at the same time aids in building rounded bodies.
HEMO will strengthen the appetite and provide nourishment for the entire system. Its use will help to drive away that tired feeling and induce refreshing sleep. HEMO is, therefore, an all around aid to those who require more than the ordinary amount of nourishment.

Misses Stella, John, Sigma and Lillie Peterson of Wausau were guests at the Peterson home last week.

Mrs. Newman and Miss Hilda Johnson were for their home in Ironwood, Mich., on Monday, having been guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Gust Harrison.

Misses Inga Nelson and Anna Larson of Unity visited friends here last week.

John Sandstrom has returned to Ironwood, Mich., where he will again be employed after spending two weeks here.

Wm. Berg of Grand Rapids spent a few days of last week at the home of his parents here.

Miss Dagmar Hawkins of Chicago, visited friends here last week.

Miss Ella Burgeson is home from Duluth, where she has been employed.

Frank Thomas has returned to Racine after a brief visit at the home of his parents here.

Mrs. Eptrom and daughter Ragina, of Tomahawk, visited at the O.
Holstrom home last week.

John Johnson and wife and August
Johnson and wife of your city, and
Chas. Williamson were at Pittsville
and Marshfield the past Sunday.

Archie Shearrier and family spent
last Sunday below Nekeosa picking blueberries.

Steve and John Koneczowski were
at Mill Creek and Stevens Point Sunday.

Mrs. J. T. Herron says that she will sell out soon and move to Grand Rapids. Mrs. Herron has been in the hotel business here for 10 or 12 years.

Mrs. Chas. Ellis has gone to Minneapolis for a visit with her parents.
Mrs. W. Grossman has gone to Needah for a visit with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Akey, Jeff and Earl Akey and Miss Percy Komfert attended the Chautauque in Grand Rapids last week.

Chas. Stolp and family have gone to Detroit, Mich., where they will make their future home.

Chet Atwood and his wife were in your city one day.

John Witwa was in Birton one day
last week.

James Klappa of your city was in our bur ga few days the past week shingling his kitchen.

Horace Weaver, wife and little son, were at Mosinee to visit at the Frank Gotey and Clem Marceau
homes.

Mike Jansky and wife were in your
city one day shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peterson were in your city one day.

Archie Snyder had a close call one night the past week while coming to work. He was driving a young horse hitched up to a cart when he met a big Snyder says that he gave
all the road, but the car ran right
into his rig and threw him and his horse into a wire fence, cutting his horse up quite badly. The car did not stop, but put on full speed and fled.

Fred Shank is now working on the dam, running the cement mixer.

Mrs. Ed Witt was in our bur ga
few days visiting her parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Christ, Oleon, that they are trying to change Grand Rapids name to Wisconsin City. We, the people of our bur, think that it would not be right, for it has been the name of our bur since the first Grand Rapids and Long to be taken off the map. Grand Rapids is good enough for anybody. People should stop and think how hard a fight they had when they split our twin city.
Dear old Centralia! It used to sound good when the conductors of the men on the St. Paul and Green Bay lines used to howl Centralia and Grand Rapids. Now since they have taken off Centralia everybody should be in favor of Grand Rapids.

It is reported that Mrs. Francis Biron has sold out her store. At this writing we don't know for sure.
Chas. Juneau spent Sunday at Rudolph with his parents.

Raymond Cratteau spent Sunday at Rudolph with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Cratteau.

HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Edward Fleischman, a young man about twenty-two years of age, living in the town of Grand Rapids, has been put under arrest following a charge of rape brought against him by a fifteen-year-old neighbor girl.
Fleischman was brought up before Justice Pomutville on Tuesday evening and pleaded not guilty, the case being adjourned ten days. A bond of $1,000 was furnished.

REPORT ILLEGAL FISHING

Considerable illegal fishing has been reported to have taken place at what is known as the Bayou, near New Rome, during the past week, and it is expected that several arrests will follow. A report of an unusually large catch, amounting to something over 600 of the tiny tripe, attracted some attention and an investigation revealed that a net had been used for the purpose of catching the fish. A number of fishermen of that section and a number of well known Nekeosa men are mentioned in the offenders.

Bossert Bros. have completed the cement work in the village of Ne-keosa and Port Edwards and before long this work will be thrown open to public travel. The work includes the stretch of road in Port Edwards, the road below Nekeosa and the concrete approaches to the Nekeosa bridge, the whole amount coming up to nearly a mile.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharkey, two sons, daughter Viola, and Miss Tina and Mr. Wolzila of Mosinee, drove down to the James Cuse home on Sunday and there attended the ball game. Later, in company with Mr. and Mrs. James Case and family, they drove to the Mose Sharkey home in Rudolph and spent the evening playing cards. The day was very pleasant and all enjoyed the disappointment of the Mosinee people because their team lost the game.

The renting of the old store building opposite the swimming pool and the converting of it into a dressing room for women have done a great deal to lighten the congested condition of the dressing rooms at the swimming pool the last week. The work of leveling the ground between the road and the pool is also completed, and this makes it assume a great deal nicer appearance and will be greatly improved with the addition of a nice sod. While local people show their appreciation of it, place by the patronage they give it,
the real value is probably not realized except by looking through the papers published throughout the state and the reading of the numerous deaths resulting from drowning during this hot spell. The pool is probably the cheapest life insurance that Grand Rapids children will ever enjoy, besides being a form of amusement that cannot be beaten at any price.

RURAL HEALTH
AMERICA'S FIRST DUTY

The estimated economic loss aggregates $928,234,880, leaving out from typhoid fever and malaria alone which our nation suffers each year of entire account the sorrow, the unhappiness, the misery and the inefficiency which follow in their train." Senator Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana today addressed the Senate on the subject of "Rural Health—America's First Duty." The greatest asset which our country can have," said Senator Ransdell, "is the healthy American citizen, and valuable as it may be to increase the health of livestock and vegetation, it is of far greater importance that we throw every possible safeguard about the health of the man who is responsible for that livestock and vegetation. Over 900 million dollars lost every year! A sum which is sufficient to put our country into a state of preparedness equal to that of any nation in the world, enough money to give us the largest navy that the world has ever seen, is annually offered up as a sacrifice to two diseases which are entirely preventable. Enough money to pay the enormous expenses of every college student in the United States is absolutely thrown away every year."

Senator Ransdell estimates the grand total loss from typhoid fever at $271,332,880 per annum and the loss from malaria at $656,904,750 per year; the total per capita loss from these two diseases being $9.46.
By comparative estimates it was shown that the total loss from typhoid fever and malaria in 1915 was $5,016,175 for the investigation and prevention of the diseases of animal and plant life and only $1,917,560 for the investigation and prevention of the diseases of man.

HOUSEWIVES, TOO, WILL ENJOY TRACTOR SHOW

There will be plenty of things just as interesting for the housewife as for the farmer at the tractor show for the demonstration, to be held at Madison, September 4 to 8.
Of course there will be tractors gallantly put in the big accessory tent small implements of all kind and machinery that depend on operation upon some other source of power will be on exhibition.
Then there will be an exhibit put on by the College of Agriculture showing modern arrangements of the kitchen and milk-house that will save the farm wife much time and hard work, modern sewage disposal plants that make farm life less subject to disease, practical water systems that make providing for running water in the kitchen as well as in the barn and barn yard; heating systems that do away with the work and waste of wood and coal stoves, and lighting systems that put the farmhouse beyond the reach of the danger and dirt of lamps.

A woman seldom gets old enough to admit she's as old as that.

MEEHAN.
Mrs. David Barrow of Jordan has been spending the past week at the home of Mrs. J. Clendenning.

Miss Theresa Szidzinski, who is employed at Port Edwards, spent Sunday at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lawton of Amherst, and Mrs. John Newton of Yelder of Linwood visited at the Wm.
Clusmann home Sunday.

Miss Jennie Fox, who has been employed at the River Pines Sanatorium, is now at home for a while.

J. S. Duffee has opened up a new grocery store on the corners, occupying the Clusmann store building.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Perdon have been spending the past week here with friends. They are spending the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perdon, at Plover, but were residents here about eighteen years ago.

Mrs. Doan of Stevens Point and daughter, Carrie, and son, Walter, spent Saturday and Sunday here visiting with friends.

HELD SKAT TOURNAMENT

The Elks held one of their regular Skat Tournaments at the Elks Club on Tuesday evening, there being a fair turnout for the occasion and a very enjoyable evening spent.
The prizes of the evening were awarded as follows:
J. A. Hoffman, 1st, 20 net games.
H. B. Welland, 2nd, 45 net games.
Ray Love, 3rd, 13 net games.
E. G. Gikley, 4th, 367 points.
Geo. Warren, 5th, High hand, 120.
This tournament was held on the porch at the Club and furnished ideal conditions for the play, a nice breeze making the play pleasant.

A. C. Berard and family of Detroit, Michigan are in the city, guests at the James Bronson home on the west side.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Reichel and Mr. and Mrs. C. Jasperson returned on Sunday from a trip over to Sturgeon Bay where they spent several days visiting old friends and enjoying an outing. They report that the cherry crop will be very light this year and to date no one has been able to tell why this is the case, many advancing the theory that the heavy frost last winter has something to do with it.

SOME FARMER

By Rev. James Deans.
(With apologies to my friend, Prof.
M. H. Jackson, Grand Rapids, Wis.)
I'd like to be a farmer
And sit around all day
And watch the old man work
Among the corn and clover
And watch her hoe potatoes
And milk the only cow;
I sure would be some farmer
To scratch the old black sow.

I'd like to be a farmer
And watch the wild weeds grow
Until the wife, in anger,
Would cut them all down, so!
With other farmers gossip—
My wisdom they'd endorse;
I sure would be some farmer,
If farming's like my rhyme.

I'd like to be a farmer
And own an automobile.
Like every other farmer
To roam around at will;
And take out Mrs. Next Farm
Ariding o'er the lea, While my old dearest woman's Avoicing all for me.

I'd like to be a farmer
For all you have to do,
Is simply touch a button
And all your work is thru;
Or, sit and say: Get up, there!
While the seed you sow,
I sure would be some farmer
If farming's like my rhyme.

I'd like to be a farmer
And rise at early morn.
And with the hired hands
High slung on their shoulders,
And watch the dear old sun rise
Until comes breakfast time,
I sure would be some farmer
If farming's like my rhyme.

HEMLOCK

KICK where it will do good!

It takes all the satisfaction out of "making a kick" if you have to do it in a letter, after your lumber has been delivered. It's hard to get action, and costly, irritating delay results.

Why not build it of HEMLOCK, the "Old Faithful" lumber? You buy that right here at home where you can see it first if you like. And if you should have a complaint (which is very unlikely) you have somebody you can talk to about it who will simply be glad to straighten everything out to your satisfaction and without delay.

FREE PLAN BOOK—(published by "The Hemlock Manufacturers," Oshkosh, Wis.) contains descriptions, plans and pictures of "Old Faithful" HEMLOCK Houses, Barns, Hog Houses, Silos, Poultry Houses, Granaries, etc. No charge—no obligation. But don't forget "Old Faithful."

where it will do good!

It takes all the satisfaction out of "making a kick" if you have to do it in a letter, after your lumber has been delivered. It's hard to get action, and costly, irritating delay results.

Why not build it of HEMLOCK, the "Old Faithful" lumber? You buy that right here at home where you can see it first if you like. And if you should have a complaint (which is very unlikely) you have somebody you can talk to about it who will simply be glad to straighten everything out to your satisfaction and without delay.

FREE PLAN BOOK—(Published by "The Hemlock Manufacturers," Oshkosh, Wis.) contains descriptions, plans and pictures of "Old Faithful" HEMLOCK Houses, Barns, Hog Houses, Silos, Poultry Houses, Greenhouses, etc. No charge—no obligation. But don't forget "Old Faithful."

The Capture of Wess Watts

Stories of the Greatest Cases in the Career of Thomas Furlong, the Famous Railroad Detective, Told by Himself

Thomas Furlong

One of the worst men I ever arrested was Wess Watts, a notorious outlaw of Pennsylvania, a "yeggman," reported murderer of his own father, and universally feared by all who knew his name, in the manner described in the following record.

During the years 1875-76 I was chief special agent for the Allegheny Valley railroad. One morning I was called to Brookville, Pa., to investigate the burglary of the company's office at that point during the preceding night.

On arriving in the little town I found the office of the company almost a wreck, the safe having been blown to pieces with dynamite and its contents including a fairly large sum of money and a number of Centennial Exposition and railroad tickets, stolen.

After some work I came to the conclusion that the job had been done by the notorious Watts gang, which had originally consisted of eight men, but had long since increased to twenty.

Watts had gained immense reputation among the criminal element by an achievement of earlier date. He was wanted on a charge of criminal assault, and the sheriff and a posse of seventeen men, armed with rifles, shotguns and pistols, went to his home and surrounded the house. The sheriff and one of his aides rapped on the door, which was opened by Watts, another, of whom the sheriff made the demand that Watts surrender.

"Hill," he said to the sheriff, "I counted your men as they surrounded the house. There are eighteen of you, and I want to say to you that I have got twenty-four shots and I know all of you fellows, and you know as well as your men know that I never miss a mark that I shoot at. Now, I am going to leave this place at once, and I will not bother Brookville again, unless you or any of your men attempt to stop me. If you do I will kill every man of you and will still have shots left."

That he brushed the sheriff aside and sprang forward, ran to a gate in front of the house, opened it, crossed the road, leaped a high rail fence and disappeared into the timber, while not a shot was fired to stop him.

Such was the man whom I set out to put under arrest. There had never been any question as to his courage; he had been a gunsmith in Brookville and was known as the crack shot of his favorite tricks was to shoot an apple from his brother's head at a distance of twenty paces with either a gun or a revolver.

My first act was to visit the Western penitentiary at Allegheny City, where a former member of the Watts gang, who had been captured, was serving a ten years sentence. This man's name was Lafayette Edwards. He was a younger brother of Wess Watts, who had also been connected with the gang, but had changed his manner of living from Lafayette, having promised to take on act against his brother, I learned that Edwards was employed as a farm hand near Vermilion, Ill. The younger brother was duly located there by me. He had established a good reputation, had joined the church and was respected by all who knew him.

"I'm a church member now," answered Edwards, "and I will do all in my power to help you."

Telling his employer that the man was wanted as a witness in an important case, I took Edwards to Pennsylvania, and with his aid speedily rounded up all the members of the gang with the exception of Wess Watts. Through the help of the police court proceedings and detective escapades are not required to be written in a dignified style. It is not stiltedness per se for the reporter to call a detective a "fly cop," to characterize his ruthless and unwarranted arrest of a man as "swinging him," and describe the officer's blunder as "pulling off another bonehead stunt." Upon this point the court said:

"It is in evidence that the term 'fly cop' does not mean an officious policeman, as might be inferred from the ordinary meaning of the slang adjective 'fly.' We are informed that a 'fly cop' sometimes called a 'shadow bull' or a 'tee,' means nothing more or less than a 'plain-clothes man,' a sleuth, detective.

"Well, these people won't identify me," Watts answered, "and I will make your boysmen pay dearly for this outrage."

"Well, see about this," I replied. "I can't be mistaken. I have been a deputy sheriff for the past two years and I have arrested two house thieves and they were convicted, so I can't be mistaken."

"Well, you are very badly mistaken now," answered Watts, and with this he stopped talking and seemed to be at his ease, as he knew that he could not be identified at Vermilion and felt sure that he would be released in due time. We arrived at East St. Louis, where I explained that I did not care to proceed to Vermilion that night as I had some business to attend to, and therefore I proposed that we stay over night in the city and take the first train out to Vermilion in the morning. Watts appeared perfectly satisfied. Accordingly I brought him across the river and took him to the Four Courts, turning him over to Major McDonough, chief of police, who was an old friend of mine.

The next morning we took an early train for Indianapolis. Just as the Wahab river, which separates Illinois from Indiana was reached, Watts turned upon me with an oath. "Where are you taking me?" he demanded. "You haven't told me the truth."

"No," I answered, "but I will do so now. I am taking you to Brookville, Pa."

"Why didn't you tell me this in the first place?" Watts asked loudly.

"My reason for not telling you in the first place," I replied, "was that after I had located you, as I supposed, at Paducah, Ky., I reported the facts to the sheriff of Jefferson county and asked him to apply for the proper papers so that you might be taken back to Pennsylvania. The sheriff obtained the papers and insisted on bringing a posse of men to assist in your capture, to which I objected. I told him that I did not think it necessary for anybody to come after you but him and myself. He reluctantly consented to accompany me. He had the papers and came as far as St. Louis. The weather was very warm, and when we arrived at St. Louis he was very feverish and complained of being sick. He was afraid that he was taking typhoid fever and insisted on returning to Pennsylvania immediately, which he did."

"Why, he wasn't sick at all—he was just afraid of me," answered Watts. "He was afraid to meet me, for he knew if I saw him I would kill him. I stood on the shore and seventeen of his men, all armed, in Brookville, once. Those fellows are all afraid of me. So you came down here to get me yourself? Well, you haven't any papers for my arrest, have you?"

"No, I have nothing but you," I answered.

"Suppose I object to going any further with you?"

"In that case I would simply have to have you locked up and wait till the papers arrive. They are all made out, therefore you can raise all the objections you like. I am a deputy sheriff, and I could have you locked up in Illinois, but I did not know what that red-headed fellow and your other associates in Shawneetown would do, and, not wanting to be bothered with them, I decided just to bring you right along."

"That fellow with the red hair is a coward," said Watts. "If ever I get my eyes on him I'll kill him outright. Did you notice when you told me to throw up my hands that I hesitated for a second? Well, I was thinking of just jumping forward and taking that gun away from you."

"Why didn't you do it?" I asked.

"I thought you'd shoot," said Watts.

"I guess you were right," I answered with a nod.

Suddenly Watts began to cry like a child. "Well, I am glad you got me," he sobbed, "for I have never had an hour's peace or rest since that night at Catholinesburg, Ky. Now I am going to tell you all about myself and my companions since I left Brookville."

On arriving at that place Wess Watts insisted on making a full confession in the presence of the sheriff, the prosecuting attorney and myself. It ran as follows:

"Left Brookville, June 20, 1874, for Parkers Landing. Got a boat there and went down the river. My father, James Watts, traded a gun for the boat. We built a shanty on the boat as we proceeded down the river. The names of the parties on the boat were: Charles Peach, Oliver Brooks, James Watts, J. W. Watts, Sarah M. Watts and Myrtle Watts. There was no difficulty on the boat until we arrived at a point near Ironton, Ohio. We got a woman by the name of Fanny Rose on board the boat, and from there down to Maysville there seemed to be some trouble between Oliver Brooks and James Watts, my father, about Fanny Rose, the girl above named. My father had been talking of turning state's evidence, and on Sunday, the 6th of September, 1874, he took an axe and cut a hole in the bottom of the boat. I remonstrated with him and he was going to strike me with the axe. The water began filling the boat, which necessitated our landing. On the night of the 6th of September, 1874, Oliver Brooks shot James Watts, killing him."

"It also appears that to 'spear' a person, in the figurative or metaphorical sense in which the expression was used in the article complained of, means to catch a person ruthlessly, by throwing a harpoon or spear into him; and we understand that a 'bonehead stunt' means nothing more or less than to commit a blunder."

"The newspaper reporter, in this instance, credited the plaintiff with a keener sense of humor than he possessed, but we are not convinced that there was malice in the publication. Stories of detectives' escapades are read by men who enjoy a little nonsense now and then, and it would take much of the flavor out of the newspaper accounts of such proceedings if we should require that they be written up in the dignified manner of the opinion and judgments of this court."

"For example, although we might deem it more appropriate to say, in commenting upon what we considered a mistake, that it was a blunder or an abuse of discretion had been committed, a newspaper reporter might well say of a more or less serious error, without intending any disrespect, that a bonehead stunt had been pulled off."

almost instantly, for threatening to turn state's evidence, concerning what had been stolen during our trip down the river by the male portion of the gang on the boat. James Watts stole nothing himself. He only lived a few minutes after Brooks shot him. I was on another boat about sixty yards above the one James Watts was on. I knew that Oliver Brooks was going to shoot my father and it made me very nervous. I made me sick and I laid down. I got up and started down to tell my father when I heard a gun shot, but having an idea of what had occurred I was very much frightened and was very weak through fear and did not go into the shanty on the boat where James Watts and Oliver Brooks were. During this Sunday afternoon, Oliver Brooks and James Watts had some dinner, and Brooks told us all, except James Watts, that he would shoot James Watts.

"After he was shot, and when I came up, either Brooks and Peach, or Brooks and Alston, were gathering up stones on the bank and carrying them into the shanty on the boat where my father was lying, and I suppose they were taking them in to be around his neck to sink him in the river, from what they said before the deed was committed. After they got everything fixed up I heard them putting my father into a skiff and rowing out into the river, and I heard them putting him overboard. They used sixty or eighty feet of half-inch rope to tie the stones to him, judging from the amount that was gone from the boat."

"After they took my father out into the river and threw him in, Oliver Brooks said he felt just as well as he did before he committed the deed, and better, too. After this there was no more conversation about it in my presence, as I would not listen to them nor permit them to talk to me about it. I did not go into the room where he was killed for five or six weeks. It was my rifle that he shot me with and it was the best rifle I ever saw or used, but after Brooks used it to shoot my father I never shot out of it or looked into the muzzle of it but what I saw blood, or thought I saw blood in it. Other persons saw blood in the muzzle of the gun after shooting it. I showed it to them without giving them any other information. There was an understanding and mutual agreement between us that we were never to say anything about the killing of James Watts. We pushed the boat off that evening, after my father had been killed and thrown into the river, and went on down stream, following our usual avocation of stealing, etc., and we did not stop permanently until we got to Paducah, Ky. At Paducah all the males in our party were arrested on the Illinois side by Marshal Geary of Paducah, Frank Farland, Wood Mays and Bill Green, on a charge of general larceny committed at Endsbyville, Ky. We were tried, convicted and sent to the penitentiary at Frankfort, Ky. I got three years, Oliver Brooks got two years and nine months, Pete Alston got one year and six months and Charlie Peach got three years. Brooks got pardoned through his wife on the 14th of May or June, 1875, and I got pardoned on the 7th of July, 1874."

"Brooks and his wife got Peach pardoned. Brooks's wife, as I understand it, had illicit relations with the son of the governor of Kentucky and through the influence of the son on his father Peach was pardoned. My wife got Governor King to write Governor Leslie, then acting governor of Kentucky, and through his intercession I was pardoned. After Brooks was pardoned he stayed until Peach and I got out. As soon as I got out I started for or back to Paducah, Ky., and left Brooks and Peach in Frankfort. I left there on the 7th day of July, 1875, and have never seen any of them since. Up to the time I left Brookville I was in the habit of going out with a gang composed of (Here follow the names.)

"I make this confession of my own free will and without the expectation of any reward through any fear. I make it because this thing has been lying on my mind like a lead weight, and I concluded I would tell the whole thing just as it occurred. My wife and I had a conversation at one time in regard to the affair and we thought of going to the officers and telling all about it, but for some reason we did not do it. This was when we were in Paducah."

Watts made the above statement with a view to shielding himself as much as possible. He himself killed his father, it was believed, and Mrs. Brooks so testified.

The Watts trial aroused a great deal of interest and people flocked from far and near to see the famous bandit. When the trial was called, however, the sheriff appeared without his prisoner and informed the judge that he had been unable to induce Watts to leave his cell, and that Watts had said he would kill any person who attempted to take him into court.

The jail was an old-fashioned stone one, and the doors leading into the cells were only about two and one-half feet wide and four feet high, therefore a person above four feet in height was obliged to stoop on entering or leaving. There was an old-fashioned wooden bedstead in each cell and Watts had torn his bedstead to pieces that morning and had taken off one of its legs, which was about three feet long and four inches square and of heavy hardwood. He was a powerful man and had declared his intention of killing any person attempting to enter his cell. He defied the sheriff or any of his officers to enter.

"Mr. Furlong," he said, "you arrested me in Illinois and brought me to Brookville. Now I deputize you to go to the jail and bring in Wess Watts, the prisoner, to this bar as soon as possible."

I found the prisoner standing in the center of his cell armed with his big club. I tried in vain to induce him to accompany me to the courtroom. Finally I turned to the sheriff.

"How long will it take you to heat a few gallons of water to a boil?" I asked in a low tone.

There was a quantity of boiling water on hand in the kitchen. A tin wash-bowl was secured and about five gallons were put into it. The boiler of water was carried to the door of Watts' cell. A big, burly deputy sheriff named Clover Smith was armed with an axe handle and placed at one side of the cell door, while I stood at the other, and, dipping up a dipper full of the boiling water, I threw its contents at Watts, striking him on the breast. Two more dippers full followed, and with a yell Watts sprang for the door. He was obliged to stoop to make his exit, and as he did Smith felled him unconscious with the axe handle. In a few minutes he was restored to consciousness and remained perfectly tractable.

Watts showed no further signs of obduracy from that moment until he was lodged safely in the state prison at Allegheny for a long term.

It may be added that on the morning when I arrested Watts at Shawneetown I had no intention of arresting him, as the sheriff had retained the papers when he pretended to be taken ill at St. Louis. The terrible reputation of the man rendered me almost secure except against a multitude. My curiosity to see the notorious bandit drew me to the shop and, seeing that Watts was unarmed, it occurred to me that a more favorable opportunity to arrest him would never occur. Acting upon this impulse I secured him.

To Remove Linen Stains. Chocolate or cocoa stains can be removed from linen by rubbing the spot with a piece of butter. Let it stand a few hours, and then wash with warm water. Mildew stains can be removed by the following bleaching fluid: Dilute one part of Javelle water with four parts of water. Moisten the mildewed spots with the liquid, and as soon as the stain disappears rinse immediately in clear water, as the bleach is harmful to the material if allowed to remain too long. This same bleach is also to be recommended in removing tea, coffee, wine and fruit stains.

Modesty. "It seems to me that I have read an anecdote something like this before," remarked the editor. "Still, don't you think it's pretty good?" asked the near-humorist. "Oh, yes."

"Well, run it anyhow, pay me 50 cents for it and credit it to a statesman. I don't care anything about fame."

We spent weeks and weeks after we had got our new house on paper in planning the color scheme and the wall decorations, and in deciding just how we could make our old furniture fit in to its new environment. We had started out ten years before with mission furniture—it is so satisfactory in a living room when there are growing children—and so we shut our eyes to the delights of the colonial mahogany and white paint, and built our room around the old things.

We had the woodwork stained dark brown and a brown paper with a light or brown figure on it put on the walls. The face curtains were cream scrim and the overhangings were brown case-mated cloth.

There were three windows at each end of the room, and a French window opened on the porch at each side of the fireplace. So the room was very

TIME TO GO SLOW

BARGAINS AT THIS SEASON ARE NOT ALWAYS BARGAINS.

Careful Thought Before Selection Is Always Advisable—Fashions Change So Quickly That Hasty Purchases May Be Money Ill Spent.

With the exception of the incoming of a narrower skirt and the introduction of the second empire evening gown, the only other forecast for the autumn deals with long skirts that have tails.

There is no reliable and authentic forecast as to what the October fashions will be, and no one except the commercialists care much about it. The majority of women are still struggling to complete a wardrobe for hot weather, or they are entirely apathetic until the first frost awakens their costly and interest.

There are three months ahead of us in which the thinnest of cloths are acceptable, and, possibly, one can follow one's fancy anywhere in arranging a wardrobe that is intended purely for the immediate present.

A word of advice, however, should be given to that class of women who take advantage of sales in order to prepare themselves for the future. This class grows larger and larger every year in America, its size being increased through the persuasiveness of those who have bargains to offer.

Next week, clothes will probably be at their minimum prices for the season. In the shops and at the dress-making places, clothes will be offered at what is called "below cost." At these sales a wholesale clearance of everything is made by the commercialists, as they do not care to carry stock any longer through the season, and because the prices are tempting and the clothes suit the fashions of the hour, there are hundreds of women who take advantage of these bargains and buy costumes that they think will give them good service when the first frost comes.

The process of buying good clothes at reduced rates at this season is one that appeals to the economist, and on the surface it seems an efficient way to dispose of money, but in truth, it is one of the most hazardous experiments.

It is one of those instances in which a majority does what only a small minority is capable of doing. A woman who does not keep herself well advised concerning the changes in clothes runs every chance of putting into her wardrobe that which should never be taken out.

The latest thing in June is apt to be the oldest thing in October. The cloth suit that looks admirable in the shop and which is guaranteed by the persuasive seller as France's latest production may not give service more than three times during the hot weather, and when one gloriouly takes it from the closet in October with its virtuous feeling of forwardness, it will present such a pitiable contrast to the new clothes that it can never be worn.

MAN PAWNS HIS SPOUSE FOR $34

Spurgie Gates Had to Pay Board Bill and There Was No Other Way.

New Orleans—Spurgie Gates fell upon evil days last January. He faced hard times and an unpaid board bill for himself and wife. Everything of value possessed by the couple had found its way into the pawnshops, but still $34 was due the landlord, C. E. Brown by name, who was growing irate. At last, however, Gates had an inspiration. He possessed one more article of value that he might be able to pawn. It was his spouse.

Would Brown take Mrs. Gates and hold her as security for the uncollected account? Sure! In fact, the landlord beamed upon Gates for the proposal.

The pawn ticket was duly made out, the wife delivered to Brown, and Gates set out with high resolves to find work and redeem his lost treasure.

A few days ago the husband discovered that he had enough money to get his wife out of pawn. But Brown asked him for the return of the pawn ticket before handing over the security. Gates could not find it. Thereupon an argument ensued over the question of principal and interest, and the two men fought. Meanwhile the woman sat on her trunk, wondering whether she was liberated or still a hostage.

Judge W. D. Chamberlain settled the argument. He allowed Brown $41 and decreed that Gates should receive back his pledge. Then his honor filed the men $15, and an equal share of court costs for disturbing the peace.

The Capture of Wess Watts

Copyright by W. G. Chauman

One of the worst men I ever arrested was Wess Watts, a notorious outlaw of Pennsylvania, thief, "egg-man," reported murderer of his own father, and universally feared by all who knew his name. In the manner described in the following record.

During the year 1874-75 I was chief special agent for the Allegheny Valley railroad. One morning I was called to Brookville, Pa., to investigate the burglary of the company's office at that point during the preceding night. On arriving in the little town I found the office of the company almost a wreck, the safe having been blown to pieces with dynamite, and its contents, including a fairly large sum of money and a number of Continental Exposition and railroad tickets, stolen. After some work I came to the conclusion that the job had been done by the notorious Watts gang, which had originally consisted of eight members, and had long terrorized the citizens of Jefferson, Clinton, Forest and Elk counties.

Watts had gained immense reputation among the criminal element by an achievement of earlier date. He was wanted on a charge of crime against, and the sheriff and a posse of seventeen men, armed with rifles, shotguns and pistols, went to his home and surrounded the house. The sheriff and one of his aides rapped on the door, which was opened by Watt's mother, of whom the sheriff made the demand that Watts surrender.

Before she could answer Watts appeared in the doorway with a Colt navy revolver in either hand and two more in his belt.

"Halt," he said to the sheriff. "I counted your men as they surrounded the house. There are eighteen of you, and I want to say to you that I have got twenty-four shots right here. I know all of you fellows, and you know as well as your own know that I never miss a mark that I shoot at. Now, I am going to leave this place at once, and I will not bother Brookville again, unless you or any of your men attempt to stop me. If you do I will kill every man of you and will still have shots left."

With that he brushed the sheriff aside, sprang forward, ran to a gate in front of the house, opened it, crossed the road, leaped a high rail fence and disappeared into the timber, while not a shot was fired to stop him.

Such was the man whom I set out to put under arrest. There had never been any question as to his courage; he had been a gunsmith in Brookville and was known as the crack shot of that portion of Pennsylvania. One of his favorite tricks was to shoot a man from his brother's head at a distance of twenty paces with either a gun or a revolver.

My first act was to visit the Western penitentiary at Allegheny City, where a former member of the Watts gang, who had been captured, was serving a ten years' sentence. This man's name was Lafayette Edwards; he had a younger brother named Horace, who had also been connected with the gang, but had changed his manner of living. From Lafayette, having promised to take no action against his brother, I learned that Horace was employed as a farm hand near Vermilion, Ill. The younger brother was duly located there by me. He had established a good reputation, had joined the church and was respected by all who knew him. I frankly told him the purpose of my journey and proposed that he return to Pennsylvania with me at my expense, promising that I would keep him quietly in a small town near Brookville, where he would not be known, until the remainder of the gang had been apprehended, and then pay his fare back to Illinois.

"I'm a church member now," answered Horace, "and I will do all in my power to help you."

Telling his employer that the man was wanted as a witness in an important case, I took Horace Edwards back to Pennsylvania, and with his aid speedily rounded up all the members of the gang, with the exception of Wess Watts, through the help of a sister of Mrs. Watts, who was in correspondence with her. I learned that Watts had last been heard from at Paducah, Ky. I went to Paducah and found Watts' wife there, introducing myself to her as a friend of her husband's.

"You got out of here?" shrieked the woman, "or I'll throw a kettleful of hot water over you. I ain't got no use for Wess nor none of his friends."

It appeared from the woman's further explanations that her husband had deserted her and their child and had run off with another man's wife. Therefore I quickly dropped my disguise and explained to the woman the purpose of my visit. I learned from her that Wess and a man named Oliver Brooks had opened a gunsmith's shop at Shawneetown, Ill., and had their shingle out for repairing, but were in reality committing burglaries and thefts almost nightly in the vicinity of that town.

Shawneetown is on the Ohio river some fifty miles from Paducah. I started for this point under circumstances which will be described later, but was compelled to abandon my first plan. I now took a boat and arrived at Shawneetown very early in the morning. I had no difficulty in locating the gunsmith's shop, and, having drawn up, seated myself upon an empty box outside a general merchandise shop across the way and awaited developments. I had been seated there for about an hour when I noticed a little cloud of smoke coming out of the stovepipe chimney in the gunshop shanty. A few minutes later the door was opened and it became evident that some one was sweeping, though who this person was I could not determine. Accordingly, feeling curious, I got up to investigate.

When I reached the spot the sweepers had disappeared and there was nobody in the front room. I knocked at the door leading into the rear room, and was answered by a man who came out carrying the broom. He was clad in blue overalls, a knit undershirt and a pair of rubbers. From his resemblance to other members of his family it was evident that this was Watts himself.

"Are you a gunsmith?" I inquired by the notorious Watts gang, which had originally consisted of eight members, and had long terrorized the citizens of Jefferson, Clinton, Forest and Elk counties.

"Well, I have a job for you. I have an old gun here, but I don't know whether it can do anything with it or not."

I awkwardly drew from my pocket the .31 Colt double-action revolver which I had brought with me, holding it about the middle. Watts turned around in a leering manner and asked me to hand him the gun. He then extended his hand to take the weapon he found it pointed at his head.

"Hands up!" I ordered. Watts hesitated for an instant. "Throw up your hands or I'll blow your head off!" I continued, and Watts obeyed.

At that moment a man with a bushy head of red hair peered through the door leading into the rear room, but when he saw what was happening, he ducked his head and disappeared. Paying no attention to the second man, I commanded Watts to face about and step forward to the door, which he did, keeping his hands up. As he stepped down and out of the door I took a pair of handcuffs out of my pocket and snapped them on my prisoner's wrists, which were held above his head.

"Now you can drop your hands," I said.

I marched Watts to the door of the village hotel, Watts obeying all my commands in a mechanical manner and uttering not a word. On arriving at the hotel I found the night clerk in charge asleep in a chair, and he seemed to be terrified at the sight of his visitors. He quickly recovered, however, and upon instructions, brought us something to eat. Watts managed to make a pretty good breakfast in spite of his "irons."

On arising from the table it occurred to me that my prisoner was very well dressed for making a long journey. I had espied a large sized old fashioned linen duster and a big brimmed straw hat hanging on the wall of the hotel sitting room, which, after some dickering with the porter, I purchased for seventy-five cents and placed upon my prisoner. The addition of these garments made Watts more like the leader of a busk than the outlaw he really was.

It was only six in the morning when we stepped aboard a train bound for East St. Louis. After we had been in the car for about half an hour Watts, who was seated next me on the left, next to the window, turned round facing me and said:

"Who are you and where are you taking me and what have you arrested me for?"

I replied that I was a deputy sheriff from Vermilion and that I had arrested him on suspicion of having committed a burglary there a week before.

"Why, I was never in Vermilion in my life," Watts answered. "You have made a big mistake."

"I guess I'm not very much mistaken," I answered. "Some of our citizens have told me that you have committed a burglary there a week before."

"Well, I was never in Vermilion in my life," Watts answered. "You have made a big mistake."

WRESTLER AND LEWIS
WRESTLE TO A DRAW

Following is the clipping taken from the Omaha World-Herald, which is considered to be one of the best papers in Nebraska. It must be remembered that Nebraska is Stecher's home state and the papers there naturally favor him. Lewis went in with the intention of avoiding having Stecher throw him and in this sense won the match. Following is the clipping:

Ed "Strangler" Lewis heralded throughout the east as championship contender, kept away from Joe Stecher five hours, but at the fairgrounds yesterday afternoon and last evening, and thereby earned a draw decision from the referee Ed Smith.

In some particulars, this was the match for the most in the entire history of this ancient game. In other respects, it was a sad disappointment to the thousands of friends of the Dodge wrestler who were there to see their idol thrash another comer.

From beginning to end Stecher carried the fight to his opponent. Lewis failed to step forward once during the entire five hours. He went backward all the time. He was not in there to wrestle, but to keep away from Stecher, and he succeeded.

Time after time Stecher laid himself open to attack. Purposely he placed himself in jeopardy in an effort to induce Lewis to take a chance, but the pseudo "Strangler" wasn't going to do any more work than necessary—and he didn't.

For the first two and a half hours the match really was worth while, but Lewis was doing no more than sparring at any time. Stecher worked hard in an effort to place his opponent in a position where he could secure his famous leg hold. He went to the mat dozens of times attempting to grab the Strangler's lower extremities.

Finally, however, Stecher tumbled to the fact that Lewis was not wrestling, and put in the remainder of his time playing the Strangler's own game. It would have been foolish for Stecher to completely exhaust himself, in the face of Lewis' light, and his friends shouted compliments to him when he assumed the same sort of a game that his opponent played.

When darkness came, about 8:15 o'clock, Referee Smith wanted to make it a draw, and called the two men to him for this purpose. Gene Melady, the promoter, leaped into the ring and declared that the men should finish the bout. Smith then sent them to the center of the mat again, and there they fooled around until 9 o'clock, when, seeing the utter disgust of the crowd and the ugly look that showed in spots, Melady told Smith to call it off.

"Do something to me," said Lewis to Stecher, at one period when Joe was down. "Go on, do something to me."

"You're behind, why don't you do something?" was Stecher's reply. "I'm not here to throw you," said Lewis. "You're here to throw me, and you can't do it."

No, it was impossible for Stecher to throw Lewis. Stecher is a wrestler not a foot racer.

Referee Smith, after about three hours of the tiresome performance, urged Lewis to take a chance. "Open up with something," he said. "Take just one chance."

But Lewis only smiled and continued his tactics of defense. "The original 'Strangler' never wrestled after that fashion," shouted someone from the bleachers.

"That's true," replied the "Strangler," "and he was thrown."

NEWS NOTES FROM WISCONSIN PLACES

Necedah Republican.—Maynard Greener, 30, old young man near Elroy, had his left arm completely severed at the wrist by a mowing machine, when his team became frightened and started to run. The clipping:

Pittsville Record.—Crops are looking fine. Never did oats and potatoes look up better. Cattle are doing only backward crop so far and the hot weather of the past two weeks is actually pulling this out of the ground. Much hay is already in the fields and the crop hereabouts in good, especially so with new seedlings.

Chicago reports state that Fred Upham, formerly of Marshfield, will head the western campaign for Mr. Hughes, Mr. Upham now being located in Chicago. Mr. Upham was formerly a member of the Upham Manufacturing Company at Marshfield and had many friends in the county that are pleased to hear of his success.

Lorraine Dickson, aged 7 years, who lives with her parents on a farm a short distance west of Pittsville, suffered severe injuries when attacked by a cow at her home last week. The young lady, when last seen, was inducing a mother cow to feed an orphan calf. Later a scream brought her brother, who witnessed the cow tossing her into the air. An examination revealed several body cuts that required several stitches each, but not considered to be of a dangerous nature.

Fred Korth, proprietor of the Omaha House at Marshfield, attempted suicide at his home on Sunday, the attempt being unsuccessful, and at last reports the man was getting along nicely. Korth had been drinking heavily and seemed restless during the night. His wife was awakened by his moving around during the night, and getting up, went into his room, where Korth was standing with a knife in his hand. She attempted to stop him from committing the deed but her attempt was useless, he slashing his throat in spite of her efforts. Korth was later taken to the asylum at Oniskosh.

Wisconsin's new state capital, which has been under way for two years, will be completed by Jan. 1, 1917, according to a statement issued by Secretary Lew F. Potter of the Capitol Building Commission to State Treasurer Henry Johnson, Tuesday. Secretary Potter reports that $5,552,735 has already been spent on the capital, having $600,000 of the original appropriation still to be expended. The cost of decorating the four wings of the capital was about $250,000, the architects received $280,000, and $178,000 has been spent for furniture.

Stevens Point Journal: Automobiles have done all sorts of things, but it remained for a machine near Nancy to literally seat an animal to death. The horse, which was becoming somewhat a prey to the indignities of age, belonged to a Duncy farmer. The automobile passing on the road is stated to have so frightened the horse that it fell down in the dust and straightway gave up the ghost. The tragedy occurred the end of the week and the extreme heat may have had something to do with the case.

Dr. E. P. Crosby of Arnott suffered a fracture of his leg on Saturday morning when his automobile turned turtle near the Arnott creamery. Mr. Crosby was driving and in making a sharp turn the car turned turtle. The doctor's daughter was also a passenger in the car at the time but escaped injury by being thrown clear of the machine. This Dr. Crosby's third accident since coming to that section, having previously had his leg broken by being kicked by a horse, and later his leg was broken again by tipping over.

Mrs. Caroline Patzer will soon have a hearing in regard to the granting of a pardon for her release from prison. A hearing on the application for a pardon for Mrs. Caroline Patzer was to have been held before Governor Philipp Wednesday but was postponed owing to the governor's recent operation. Mrs. Patzer resided on a farm near Synco in Waupaca county. About three years ago she was given a nine years sentence to the state prison for third degree murder after being convicted of killing her husband. It was shown that she struck her husband with a stick of wood during a quarrel. It was also stated that the man had beaten her. Mrs. Patzer is reported dying of heart disease. The warden of the prison writes that she is unable to walk upstairs. A daughter who was opposed to her mother at her trial is now laboring for her pardon and is contributing money to the cause.

Mrs. Witt entertained a few friends in honor of her cousin, who is visiting her.

Mrs. Gryskwa went to Oshkosh last Tuesday to visit her daughter. She returned home Monday.

Mrs. Frances Murphy, who is working in Chicago, returned home last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wm. Witt entertained company from Milwaukee the past week.

FAIR WILL BE GOOD

The Committee in charge of the Central Wisconsin Fair, which will be staged in Marshfield the latter part of August, have come out with their descriptive catalogue, on the event and judging by the attractions offered the event will be a banner one this season.

Among the features of the fair will be a number of amusement attractions such as a carnival company, Rhode's Royal Baby elephants, the Toki Japs and the German Regals in a strong man act. While these attractions are all standard stuff that may be seen at any high class fair the committee have staged more attractive events in the form of a Home Coming Parade, Stock Exhibits and demonstrations, and a list of horse races that are hard to equal. The association are putting up $2300 for horse race prizes and have in their events listed some of the best that burn the turf.

Will Orpet is FREE? Will Orpet, a Wisconsin University student, who has been on trial for several weeks past for the murder of Miss Marion Lambert, a seventeen-year-old sweetheart, was freed Saturday evening by the jury after being out a little over four hours.

The case has probably attracted as much attention as anything of this nature for a number of years and has caused an expense of several thousand dollars to the state of Illinois, the case coming up in Waukegan. Orpet was a student in journalism at the university and the charge came as a shock to his instructors, who considered him a very quiet young man.

GIVE THE BABY A CHANCE

Bad air, bad milk, over-crowding, poverty, dirt, ignorance, heat—these combine in summer to kill the city baby. It seems as though the brunt of the cities' sanitary sins were focussed on the baby. The baby didn't ask to come, live in hot, dark, ill-light tenement, to be fed on dirty, half spoiled milk, to be pestered with flies and mosquitoes. He is not responsible for any of these conditions and it is his right that he have fresh air, clean surroundings and decent food.

Health Service issues free of charge to all applicants a bulletin on "The Summer Care of Infants." It should be in the hands of every mother.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION

The Republicans of the county were in session in this city last Thursday and about twenty-five attended the meeting. A committee consisting of Amos Roll, Hugo Wegner and R. E. Andrews were appointed to select a candidate for member of assembly. The meeting was considered a good one.

Mr. Anton DeByl has been very sick the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark of Lincolnwood spent Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharkey and family and Mr. Rosell of Mosinee passed through here Sunday in an auto. They went to your city to witness the ball game. Mrs. Maude Robbins went with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coenen are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl Wednesday, July 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peterson in Sigel are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl Tuesday, July 11. Mrs. Peterson was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Marceau of this place.

Irvin Whitmore and family departed Saturday morning for their home in Ladysmith after a two weeks visit with relatives here, in your city and Port Edwards.

LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION
ISTS SATISFIED WITH GRAND RAPIDS.

The convention of the Ogema-District Luther League, held here last week, adopted the following resolutions in appreciation of their treatment here:

"At a meeting held in Sigel it was decided to extend a greeting of heart-felt thanks to those who by granting the use of automobiles to take the members of the convention from Grand Rapids to Sigel Saturday night and who also donated the use of the cars Monday morning to bring them to the picnic grounds, practically made it possible for the Ogema-District Luther League to carry out its program in the city as well as in Sigel. The local leagues are also very thankful to Mr. Taylor for all the help he rendered and for granting the use of his cottage on Long Island, to Rev. Logan for the permission to use his church Saturday evening, to Mr. Lyle for the free use of a piano—to one and all who helped the league so that they could return home with the impression that this was the best convention in the history of the Ogema District Luther League."

The following officers were elected by the organization for the coming year: President, Rev. Carl J. Shifversten, Rhinelander; vice-president, Mr. Falke Heden, Ogema; secretary, Miss Emma Worland, of Grand Rapids; corresponding secretary, Miss Morsell, of Kerrill; treasurer, Miss Stella Johnson, of Wausau.

The next convention will be held at Ironwood, Mich., in the Saleu church, where the league was organized some years ago.

NEW ROAD MAP OF WISCONSIN

One hundred thousand automobile owners of Wisconsin and countless motor parties touring the state, who have been anxiously groping from one roadside signboard to another and pestering wayfarers with questions as to the best route from somewhere to somewhere else, may now rise up from the steering wheel, wipe their goggles and call the Wisconsin Highway Commission by name. The long desired road map of the state is published and ready for distribution.

The commission has for several months been collecting from county highway commissioners, garage men, its own employees, and other sources, the best obtainable information as to the principal routes of travel, and it is believed that the new map embodies the best information available and will be of vast assistance to the traveling public.

The map is a sheet 21x33 inches, folded into a neat flexible cover which fits the pocket. Wide red lines on the map show the principal highways forming through routes of inter-county and state travel. Solid narrow red lines indicate the secondary lines of travel. Dotted narrow red lines indicate secondary lines of travel of doubtful passability at certain seasons. The routes outlined are believed to be the best practical ones, most commonly used.

Cities, villages, county lines, lakes, rivers, and railroads are shown, but no other highways than the three classes mentioned.

Expenses of compilation and printing necessitates a nominal charge—five cents—for each map, copies of which may be had by application to the Wisconsin Highway Commission, Madison.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL ST. JOHN'S CHURCH—G. A. R. HALL

Our next order service is to be held on Sunday, the 23rd of July, in the morning at 10:30 o'clock. The sermon will be offered by Rev. G. B. Paulowit. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

SCANDINAVIAN MORAVIAN CHURCH

Rev. Madsen of this city will conduct the services at the Scandinavian Moravian Church during the absence of Rev. Johnson. The services will be conducted at the usual hours.

MYSTIC WORKERS MEET

The Mystic Workers will hold their next regular meeting on Tuesday evening, July 25. Important matters that interest the entire lodge will come up at this time and a large attendance is desired. Ice cream and cake will be served.

CHIEFS OF POLICE AND FIRE DEPARTMENTS REPORT TO THE GOOD JUDGE

JUDGE, NEARLY EVERY OFFICER ON THE FORCE SAYS: "PATROL DUTY IS A PLEASURE WHEN THEY HAVE A LITTLE CHEW W-B CUT TOBACCO."

NEARLY ALL THE FIREMEN USE W-B "W-B CUT WINS WHEN THEY TACK SMALL CHIGNS."

NOTHING TOO GOOD FOR POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN TO PROTECT OUR LIVES AND PROPERTY.

THE way that a small chew of W-B CUT Chewing gives tobacco satisfaction is a revelation and a treat to tobacco users. It's rich tobacco—and the salt brings out the taste without the grinding and the spitting, that's another reason why it's appreciated by a gentleman. You don't have to keep reaching for a fresh supply, a little nibble lasts.

Dealers who want customers to have fine tobacco carry W-B CUT—the pouch.

DON'T BUY A SILO ON

"Take It for Granted Basis"

No other farm equipment serves as useful a purpose as the silo; yet no other equipment is so much bought on the "Take it for Granted" basis. It naturally results in inferior silo equipment being foisted upon the farmer, for which he pays exorbitant prices. Here is the way you can know—not take it for granted—you are getting the best in silo construction, and are paying for no more than you receive. Get posted on the

TECKTONIUS SILO

The World's Best Silo Construction

You'll then know for yourself what to expect and demand in the silo you buy, to insure the highest class construction—the most perfect service.

Tecktonius is in one Grand Class by itself in all Tank and Silo Equipment Service. No others are comparable to it.

Without reflecting on your silo knowledge, we affirm, Mr. Farmer, that you cannot know—do not know—what a silo construction should be—can be and really is in the Tecktonius—until you know about and see the "Harder Patent Continuous Door Design"—the Tecktonius Self-Adjusting Silo Hoop and Door Fasteners, Silo "Hinge" Door and "Double Check" Anchor System—the really vital factors in all silos.

The Tecktonius Silo is assembled entirely on our yards and sold only by us in this territory. It is equipped complete with the Tecktonius Matchless Fixtures, giving you a silo that cannot be matched in any feature of its construction or service. We also can save you big money on its cost, for we do away with the dozen and one silo profits and extra freight charges you pay the silo manufacturer for inferior silos.

You would not think of buying a "Rake Off" Reaper after seeing the modern binder, would you?

Neither would you think of buying one of these "19th Century" silos after knowing about the "20th Century" Tecktonius.

Don't even think of buying a silo until you get posted on the Tecktonius. It will put you "wise" to the shortcomings of the others. Send for "Broadside" and Book on "Silo Facts"—Both Free—telling you all about the "Tecktonius" and giving you valuable and instructive information on silos and things, including a lot of silos you should and want to know.

STECHER AND LEWIS WRESTLE TO A DRAW

Following is the clipping taken from the Omaha World-Herald, which is considered to be one of the best papers in that city. It must be remembered that Nebraska is Stecher's home state and the papers there naturally favor him. Lewis went in with the intention of avoiding having Stecher throw him and in this sense won the match. Following is the clipping:

Ed Strangler Lewis, who had been through the contest as champion, took away from Joe Stecher five hours, but, at the fairgrounds yesterday afternoon and last evening, and thereby earned a draw decision from the referees Ed Smith. In some particulars, this was the most remarkable grapple in the entire history of this ancient game. In other respects, it was a sad disappointment to the thousands of friends of the Dodge wrestler who were there to see their idol dethrone another conqueror.

From beginning to end Stecher carried the fight to his opponent. Lewis failed to stop forward once during the entire five hours. He went backward all the time. He was not in there to wrestle, but to keep away from Stecher, and he succeeded.

Time after time Stecher had him self open to attack. Purposely he placed himself in jeopardy in an effort to induce Lewis to take a chance, but the pseudo "Strangler" wasn't going to do any more work than necessary—and he didn't.

For the first two and a half hours the match really was worth while, but Lewis was doing no more than spurring at any time. Stecher worked hard in an effort to place his opponent in a position where he could secure his famous leg hold. He went to the mat dozens of times attempting to grab the Strangler's lower extremities.

Finally, however, Stecher tumbled to the fact that Lewis was not wrestling, and put in the remainder of his time playing the Strangler's own game. It would have been foolhardy for Stecher to completely exhaust himself, in the face of Lewis' fight, and his friends shouted compliments to him when he assumed the same sort of a game that his opponent played.

When darkness came at 8:15 o'clock, Stecher Smith wanted to make it a draw. He called the two men to him for this purpose. Gemo Metady, the promoter, stepped into the ring and declared that the men should finish the bout. Smith then sent them to the center of the mat again and they fought around until 9 o'clock, when, seeing the utter disgust of the crowd and the ugly mood that showed in spots, Metady told Smith to call it off.

So the match to the finish was down. "Go on, do something to me,"

"You're bolding, why don't you do something?" was Stecher's reply.

"I'm not here to throw you," said Lewis. "You're here to throw me, and you can't do it."

No, it was impossible for a wrestler to throw Lewis. Stecher is a wrestler not a foot racer.

Before Smith called the three hours of the strenuous performance, urged Lewis to take a chance.

"Open up with something," he said. "Take just one chance."

But Lewis only smiled and continued his tactics of dodging around.

"The original 'Strangler' never wrestled after that fashion," shouted someone from the ring.

"That's true," replied the "Strangler," and he was through.

For the time being, the discussion of the information that Lewis was on the mat in an effort to tire Stecher out before he attempted to pin his shoulders.

If that was the case he left the ring a disappointed man, for Stecher, if anything, was the fresher of the two. A slight roll of beer around Lewis' middle made him breathe hard whenever pressed.

On defense, Lewis displayed a lot of corking good stuff. On offense about 19,000 persons in that big wrestling hall was very offensive to crowd.

Stecher was never pressed to the point where it was necessary for him to uncover his defensive means, because of his inability to overcome his feet-footed opponent.

The crowd that witnessed the bout was a magnificent one. Every available seat in the big amphitheater was taken and hundreds of automobiles were parked about the infield. It was an orderly crowd, too, until toward the last of the match. Everybody was with Stecher to win, and they deplored Lewis' methods, but, aside from throwing the cushions, the spectators kept well within the bounds of reason.

A Medical Book Free
By Dr. N. A. Goddard

Modern Methods of treating Chronic Diseases without Operation, has just come from the pen of Dr. Goddard the Milwaukee Specialist and is one of the most interesting as well as instructive little books the doctor has ever written.

If you are a sufferer from Appendicitis, Rupture, Gall Stone, Colic, Colitis or Chronic diseases of a private nature, you should avail yourself of this valuable little book free simply for the asking. A postal will bring it to you, in a plain wrapper. Many so-called surgical diseases, have been proven to be curable by medical treatment, more safely, more easily and cheaply by modern medical methods than was believed possible a few years ago.

After you have read this little book you can consult Dr. Goddard on his monthly visits to Grand Rapids, free of charge and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have secured the best medical advice. If you have been advised to submit to an operation, surely do not fail to consult him before undergoing such an operation. His advice may save you many weeks of suffering, loss of time and expense, possibly your life. Dr. Goddard will be at the Witter Hotel all day Tuesday, Aug. 1st, and makes no charge for a friendly visit. Hours 9 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

NEWS NOTES FROM WISCONSIN PLACES

Needham Republican. — Maynard Greeley, a 20-year-old young man from Elroy, who has left a car completely wrecked at the wrist by a mowing machine, when his team became frightened and started to run.

Pittsville Record. — Crops are looking fine. Never did corn and potatoes look up better. Corn is the hot backward crop so far and the hot weather of the past two weeks is actually pulling this out of the ground. Much hay is already in the stacks and the crop prospects are good, especially so with new seedings.

Chicago reports state that Fred Upham, formerly of Marshfield, will head the campaign for the Wisconsin State Fair. Mr. Upham was formerly a member of the Upham Manufacturing Company at Marshfield and has many friends in the county who are pleased to hear of his success.

Lorraine Dickson, aged 7 years, who lives with her parents on a farm a short distance west of Pittsville, suffered severe injuries when attacked by a cow at her home last week. The young lady, when last seen, was inducing a mother cow to breed an orphan calf. Later a screen found her brother, who witnesses the cow tossing her into the air. An examination revealed several body cuts that required several stitches to close, but are not considered to be of a dangerous nature.

Fred Korth, proprietor of the Omaha House at Marshfield, attempted suicide at his home on Sunday, the attempt being unsuccessful, and at last reports the man was getting along nicely. Korth had been drinking heavily and seemed restless during the night. His wife was awakened by his moving around during the night, and getting up, went into his room, where Korth was standing with a razor in his hand. She attempted to stop him from committing the deed but her attempt was useless, he slashing his throat in spite of her efforts. Korth was later taken to the asylum at Oshkosh.

Wisconsin's new state capitol, which has been over ten years in building, will be completed by Jan. 1, 1917, according to a statement issued by Secretary Lew F. Potter of the capitol building commission. State Treasurer Henry Johnson, Tuesday, Secretary Potter reports that $6,655,917.66 has already been spent on the capitol, having $900,000 of the original appropriation still to be expended. "The most of decorating the capitol was done," said Johnson, "the architects received $280,000, and $178,000 has been spent for furniture."

Stevens Point Journal: Automobiles have done all sorts of things to horses, but it remained for a machine near Dane to literally scare an animal to death. "The horse, which was becoming somewhat pensive to the irregularities of age, belonged to a Dairy farmer. The automobile passing on the road is stated to have so frightened the horse that it fell down in the dust and straightway gave up the ghost. The tragedy occurred during the day of the week and the extreme heat may have had something to do with the case."

Dr. E. P. Crosby of Arnott suffered a fracture of his leg on Sunday morning when his automobile turned turtle near the Arnott creamery. Mr. Crosby was driving and in making a sharp turn the car turned turtle. The doctor's daughter was also a passenger in the car at the time but escaped injury by being thrown clear of the machine. This is Dr. Crosby's third accident since coming to that section, having previously had his leg broken by being kicked by a horse, later the same leg was broken again by tipping over.

Mrs. Caroline Patzer will soon have a hearing in regard to the granting of a pardon for her release from prison. A hearing on the application for a pardon for Mrs. Caroline Patzer was to have been held before Governor Philipp Wednesday but was postponed owing to the governor's recent operation. Mrs. Patzer resided on a farm near Seneca in Waupaca county. About three years ago she was given a nine years sentence to the state prison for third degree murder after being convicted of killing her husband. It was shown that she struck her husband with a stick of wood during a quarrel. It was also stated that the man had beaten her. Mrs. Patzer is reported dying of heart disease. The warden of the prison writes that she is unable to walk upstairs. A daughter who was opposed to her mother's pardon and is contributing money to the cause.

KELLNER

Mrs. WIT entertained a few friends in honor of her cousin, who is visiting her.

Mrs. Grysky went to Oshkosh last Tuesday to visit her daughter. She returned home Monday.

Miss Frances Murphy, who is working in Chicago, returned home last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wm. Witt entertained company from Grand Rapids last week.

Mrs. Theo. Stienke and two sons of Wild Rose are here visiting friends and picking blueberries around here. Anna Kewdieski and cousins, who have been visiting at the Kewdieski home last week returned to Milwaukee last Saturday.

B. L. Ward and family autted to Lake Emily last Saturday.

Mrs. Emil Knipfle is entertaining Wm. Witt and family from near Wild Rose.

Rev. Rathke entertained company from Grand Rapids last week.

George Smith moved his family into the Ginsburg place last week.

Alert and McGuire & Co. are putting up a salting station for cucumbers near the C. and N. W. depot. Mr. Wm. Witt expects to run it for them this summer.

Don't forget the ice cream social at the Moravian Church next Friday evening, July 21. Everybody welcome.

Vesper State Center: Wm. Staven was brought home from Kearney, Neb., Tuesday by his brother-in-law, Henry Carlson, of Fond du Lac. It will be remembered that Wm. Staven had been sick and in the hospital at Kearney for about a year. Emil Staven went out there this spring to bring his brother home but the doctors discouraged the idea of moving him at that time. Now that he is somewhat improved, Henry Carlson went out and brought him home. He stood the trip remarkably well considering the hot weather.

FAIR WILL BE GOOD

The Committee in charge of the Central Wisconsin Fair, which will be staged in Marshfield, the latter part of August, have come out with their descriptive catalogue on the event and judging by the attractions offered the event will be a banner one this season.

Among the features of the fair will be a number of amusement attractions such as a carnival company, Rhoda Royal's Baby elephants, the Toki Japs and the German Regals in a strong man act. While these attractions are all standard stuff that may be seen at any high class fair the committee have staged more attractive events in the form of a Home Coming Parade, Stock Exhibits and demonstrations, and a list of horse races that are hard to equal. The fair and the crop prospects are good, especially so with new seedings.

Will Orpet is a Wisconsin University student, who has been on trial for several weeks past for the murder of Miss Marion Lambert, a seventeen-year-old sweetheart, was freed Saturday evening by the jury after being out a little over four hours.

The case has probably attracted as much attention as anything of this nature for a number of years and has caused an expense of several thousand dollars to the state of Illinois, the case coming up in Waukegan. Orpet was a student in journalism at the university and the charge came as a shock to his instructors, who considered him a very quiet young man.

GIVE THE BABY A CHANCE

Bad air, bad milk, over-crowding, poverty, dirt, ignorance, and disease, combine in summer to kill the baby. It seems as though the brunt of the cities' sanitary sins were focussed on the baby. The baby didn't ask to come, he was born in a hot, dirty, half spoiled milk, to be pestered with flies and mosquitoes. He is not responsible for any of these conditions and it is his right that he have fresh air, clean surroundings and decent food. The United States Public Health Service issues free of charge to all applicants a bulletin on "The Summer Care of Infants." It should be in the hands of every mother.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION

The Republicans of the county were in session in this city last Tuesday and about twenty-five attended the meeting. A committee consisting of Amos Roll, Hugo Wegener and L. E. Andrews were appointed to select a candidate for the office of assessor.

The next convention will be held at Ironwood, Mich., in the Salem church, where the league was organized some years ago.

NEW ROAD MAP OF WISCONSIN

One hundred thousand automobile owners of Wisconsin and countless motor parties touring the state, will have been busy groping from one roadside signboard to another and pestering wayfarers with questions as to the best route from somewhere to somewhere else, may now rise from the steering wheel, wipe their goggles and call the Wisconsin Highway Commission blessed. The long desired road map of the state is published and ready for distribution.

The commission has for several months been collecting from county highway commissioners, garage men, its own employees, and other sources, the best obtainable information as to the principal roads of travel, and it is believed that the new map embodies the best information available and will be of vast assistance to the traveling public.

The map is a sheet 21x28 inches, folded into a neat flexible cover which fits the pocket. Wide red lines on the map show the principal highways forming through routes of inter-county and state travel. Solid narrow red lines indicate the secondary lines of travel. Dotted narrow red lines indicate secondary lines of travel of doubtful passability at certain seasons. The routes outlined are believed to be the best, practical, and most commonly used.

Cities, villages, county lines, lakes, rivers, and railroads are shown, but no other highways than the three classes mentioned.

Expense of compilation and printing necessitates a nominal charge—five cents—for each map, copies of which may be had by application to the Wisconsin Highway Commission, Madison.

Good Luck

Good luck is more a matter of ENERGY and PLUCK than anything else.

A man of determination is going to "arrive" if he makes that his business. No one travels very far on the road to success these days without the co-operation of a reliable bank, and we are here to render every possible assistance to the young man who is determined to succeed. Talk over your plans with us—we'll help bring you GOOD LUCK.

CHIEFS OF POLICE AND FIRE DEPARTMENTS REPORT TO THE GOOD JUDGE

JUDGES, NEARLY EVERY OFFICER OF THE FORCE SAYS PATROL DUTY IS A PLEASURE WHEN THEY HAVE A LITTLE CHEW OF W-B CUT TOBACCO

NEARLY ALL THE FIREMEN USE W-B. IF THEY WOULD ONLY TAKE SMALL CHIEFS.

FIREMEN TOO GOOD FOR POLICEMEN AND OTHERS WHO TAKE SMALL CHIEFS.

THE WAY THAT A SMALL CHEW OF W-B CUT Chewing gives tobacco satisfaction is a revelation and a treat to tobacco users. It's rich tobacco—and the spitting, that's another reason why it's appreciated by a gentleman. You don't have to keep reaching for a fresh supply, a little nibble lasts.

For those who want customers to have fine tobacco carry W-B CUT—the pouch.

DON'T BUY A SILO ON "Take It for Granted Basis"

No other farm equipment serves as useful a purpose as the silo; yet no other equipment is so much bought on the "Take It for Granted" basis. It naturally results in inferior silo equipment being foisted upon the farmer, for which he pays exorbitant prices. Here is the way you can know—not take it for granted—you are getting the best in silo construction, and are paying for no more than you receive. Get posted on the

The World's Best Silo Construction

You'll then know for yourself what to expect and demand in the silo you buy, to insure the highest class construction—the most perfect service.

Tecktonius is in one Grand Class by itself in all Tank and Silo Equipment Service. No others are comparable to it.

Without reflecting on your silo knowledge, we affirm, Mr. Farmer, that you cannot know—do not know—what a silo construction should be—can be and really is in the Tecktonius—until you know about and see the "Harder Patent Continuous Door Design"—the Tecktonius Self-Adjusting Silo Hoon and Door Fasteners, Silo "Hinges," Door and Double Check, Anchor System, the really vital factors in all silos.

The Tecktonius Silo is assembled entirely on our yards and sold only by us in this territory. It is equipped complete with the Tecktonius Matchless Features, giving you silo that cannot be matched in any feature of its construction or service. We also can save you his money on its cost, for we do away with the dozen and one silo profits and extra freight charges. You pay the silo manufacturer for inferior silos.
